Major Granville B. McDonald died at his home 320 W. Jackson St. Sparta, Ill. Friday April 25, 1930 at age 89 years, 2 months, 16 days.

the position of head of the sept has continued unbroken down to the present incumbent, Walter Lionel O'Kelly of Gallagh and Tycooly, Count of the Holy Roman Empire, known as 'the O'Kelly', and recognised as such by the Chief Herald of Ireland. Today, Kelly and O'Kelly are almost as numerous in Ireland as Murphy, and are to be found throughout Ireland. Individuals of the name have been prominent in all spheres of Irish life. The best-known modern Irish sculptor was Oisin Kelly (1915-1981); Charles E. Kelly (1902-1981) was one of the founders of Dublin Opinion, the most famous satirical magazine to appear in Ireland, and James O'Kelly (1845-1915) had a remarkable career as a war correspondent and member of Parliament.

KENNEDY

Kennedy in Irish is O Cinneide, from a compound word meaning 'ugly-headed' or 'rough-headed'. The original bearer of the name, from whom the family claim descent, was a nephew of Brian Boru. His descendants were one of the most powerful families in the famous Dal gCais tribal grouping, and migrated from their homeland near Killaloe in Clare into adjoining north Tipperary, to become Lords of Ormon for over four hundred years up to the sixteenth century. From there the surname spread farther afield, becoming one of the most numerous and widespread in Ireland. In Ulster, many Kennedys are originally of Scottish stock, the Mac Kennedys being a branch of the Clan Cameron. The surname is now also very common in Galloway and Ayrshire. The most famous modern bearer of the name was, of course, John F. Kennedy, thirty-fifth president of the U.S., descended from a Wexford branch of the Dalcassian family.

KENNY

In Irish Kenny is generally O Cionaodha, from the personal name Cionadh, of uncertain origin. It was borne by a high-king of Ireland Cionaodh mac Irgalaig in the eight century, and seems to have become popular after this. At any rate O Cionaodha arose as a separate surname in a number of places, including Co. Tyrone, and the Galway/Roscommon region. This latter family was the most important historically, lords of Munter Kenny, and it is from then that the majority of Irish Kennys spring. In Ulster, Kenny was also the anglicisation of the separate O Coinne, based in Co. Down, and became a synonym for a number of other names, including McKenna, Canning and Keaney. The stage designer and director Sean Kenny (1933-1973) had achieved international fame when he died suddenly.

KEOGH

Keogh, and its variant Kehoe, are the anglicisations of the Irish Mac Eochaidh, from eoch, meaning 'horse'. It arose as a surname in three distinct areas. The first was in south Roscommon, around Moyfinn in the barony of Athlone, which used to be known as 'Keogh's country'. This family was part of the Ui Mhaine tribal grouping. The second was in west Tipperary, near Limerick city; the placename Ballymackeogh marks the centre of their territory. The third and most important, both numerically and historically, was in Leinster, where the original homeland was in north Kildare, whence they migrated first to Wicklow and then south to Wexford. It is in Wexford that the name has been most commonly anglicised Kehoe. The surname is now most frequent in Leinster, though it has become widespread throughout Ireland.

KERR

Kerr is Scottish and northern English in origin, describing a person who lived near overgrown marshland, kerr in northern Middle English. As might be expected, it is principally found in Ulster, where the majority of those bearing the name are descended from one of the Scottish Border riding clans, whose enforced migration in the seventeenth century also brought large numbers of Armstrongs, Johnstones and others to the province, where they settled, initially at least in Co. Fermanagh. A separate Scottish family of the name is part of the Clan Campbell in Argyllshire. As well as Scottish origins,

Dear Cousin Ruth:

This is from a nice lady in Kenney, Il (see last two pages)

Maybe I'll find time to go down there and lend the two books.

I'm sure we don't own Kenney but you'll note one of the early settlers was a John Kenney.

THE SEVENTH VILLAGE OF [illegible]
PLATTED AND FILED FOR RECORD IN SEPTEMBER OF 1871, BY MOSES KENNEY AND WAS NAMED KENNEY AFTER IT'S FOUNDER. IT WAS INCORPORATED IN 1875. ONE CANNOT HELP BUT ADMIRE THE COURAGE OF MR. KENNEY IN UNDERTAKING SUCH A PROJECT, FOR ANOTHER TOWN, FRANKLIN, THREE MILES TO THE NORTH AND EAST, WITH THREE STORES, BLACKSMITH SHOP, FLOUR MILL, SAWMILL, POST OFFICE AND SCHOOL WAS ALREADY IN EXISTENCE. (MY GREAT GRANDFATHER, JAMES A. KIRBY, WAS THE POSTMASTER, AND THE FIRST ONE IN THE COUNTY).

KENNEY WAS LOCATED ALMOST IN THE EXACT CENTER OF TUNBRIDGE TOWNSHIP, AND THERE WAS NOT A BUILDING ON THE ENTIRE FORTY ACRES. THE ONLY THING MR. KENNEY HAD IN HIS FAVOR WAS A RAILROAD - BUT THAT PROVED TO BE ENOUGH FOR KENNEY BEGAN TO "GROW LIKE A WEED" AND IN ONLY A FEW YEARS BECAME ONE OF THE BEST AND MOST WIDELY KNOWN SMALL TOWNS IN THE ENTIRE STATE.

THE FAMILIES OF JOHN, JAMES AND MOSES KENNEY WERE RESIDENTS OF TUNBRIDGE TOWNSHIP AND BETWEEN THEM, OWNED CONSIDERABLE TUNBRIDGE TOWNSHIP LAND, MOSTLY IN SMALL TRACTS AND WELL SCATTERED OVER SEVERAL SECTIONS. THEIR LARGEST SINGLE HOLDINGS WAS A 160 ACRE TRACT ALONG THE ENTIRE WEST SIDE OF SECTION 15, WHICH WAS OWNED BY MOSES AND ADJOINING THIS ON THE WEST WAS 120 ACRES OWNED BY JOHN. THIS WAS ALL UNDER CULTIVATION AT THE TIME. THE RAILROAD SPLIT THE NORTH HALF, OF THE SOUTHWEST HALF, OF THE SOUTHWEST QUARTER OF SECTION 15, WHICH BELONGED TO MOSES KENNEY, ALMOST EXACTLY IN HALF AND WHICH RESULTED IN LEAVING TWO TRIANGULIAR FIELDS IN THIS FORTY ACRES. MR. KENNEY CONCEIVED THE IDEA OF RIDDING HIMSELF OF THESE TWO ODD SHAPED TRACTS OF LAND BY THE PROCEDURE OF STARTING A NEW TOWN.

STREET
EXACTLY ONE FOURTH MILE SQUARE, WITH THE
GOING "CAT-A-CORNER" ACROSS IT AND THE MAIN NORTH AND SOUTH PUBLIC HIGHWAY FORMING ITS WESTERN BOUNDARY
AND THE EAST AND WEST HIGHWAY ON THE NORTH.
MR. KENNEY, IN LAYING OUT THE STREETS NAMED THEM
AS FOLLOWS. BEGINNING ON THE NORTH, WHICH WAS ALREADY A PUBLIC ROAD, THIS EAST + WEST STREET WAS NAMED HOWARD
NEXT TO THE SOUTH, WAS NAMED BENJAMIN, THE NEXT CROSLEY
AND THE LAST, SHELDON. THE NORTH AND SOUTH STREETS, BEGINNING WITH THE FIRST ONE ON THE EAST, WERE NAMED
FULLER, THEN KENNEY, THEN HENDERSON AND THE LAST
ONE JOHNSTON. A HALF STREET, UNNAMED, WAS LEFT ON THE SOUTH, AND EAST SIDES OF THE TOWN. THE INTERSECTION OF CROSLEY AND KENNEY STREETS WAS ALMOST THE EXACT CENTER OF THE NEW VILLAGE.

THIS SURVEY WAS BEGUN ON SEPT. 25, 1871, AND WAS COMPLETED AND FILED FOR RECORD ON SEPT. 28, 1871.
THAT DATE IS THE ACTUAL BIRTH DATE OF THE VILLAGE OF KENNEY EVEN THO IT HAD NOT A SINGLE HOUSE OR OTHER BUILDING WITHIN ITS BORDERS.

ANDREW MILMINE OPENED KENNEY'S FIRST STORE
ON THE CORNER OF BENJAMIN AND HENDERSON STREETS.

THE SECOND STORE WAS BUILT BY JAMES A. KIRBY
ON THE CORNER OF KENNEY AND BENJAMIN STREETS.
AND SO IT WENT. LOTS IN THE VILLAGE SOLD LIKE HOT CAKES'
AND HOUSES WERE MOVED INTO TOWN ALL DURING THE WINTER
OF '71 AND '72. THE FIRST COMPLETELY NEW HOUSE
WAS THAT OF ROBERT ORR, LOCATED ON LOT 1 BLOCK 15
AND WAS BUILT DURING THE WINTER OF 71 AND 72.

BY MAY OF 1872, KENNEY BOASTED OF SEVEN
DWELLINGS, TWO STORES AND A DOZEN OR SO
HOUSES UNDER THE PROCESS OF CONSTRUCTION.
ALSO THERE WERE NEW STORE BUILDINGS BEING BUILT ON THE CORNER OF KENNEY AND CROSLEY
STREETS AND ON LOT 4 BLOCK 6 FACING KENNEY
STREET. DURING THE SUMMER OF 72 GEORGE

POINDEXTER MOVED HIS BLACKSMITH SHOP FROM HALLSVILLE TO KENNEY, LOCATEING ON LOT 6 OF BLOCK 2. OTHERS TO COME TO KENNEY DURING THE YEAR WERE G. P. BRAHM, WITH A VARIETY STORE, THOMAS COOLEY, WITHA CARPENTER AND WOOD WORKING SHOP - HE ALSO DOUBLED AS KENNEY'S FIRST UNDERTAKER, L.C. ROBBINS WITH A DRUG STORE, FRANK PARKER, WITH A PAINT STORE, AND J. DEIHL, WITH A SHOE STORE.

IN 1873, THE H. P. RUCKER CO. BUILT A TWO STORY BUILDING ON LOT 7, BLOCK 7, AND FRANK PENCE BUILT THE KENNEY HOTEL ON LOT 4, BLOCK 3, BOTH FACEING KENNEY STREET AND THEREBY ESTABLISHED KENNEY STREET AS THE 'HUB' OF THE CITY.

KENNEY GREW AND BONARGES THOMPSON HAD A SAWMILL IN THE TIMBER ALONG SALT CREEK, JUST NORTH F TOWN, AND IT WAS KEPT BUSY SAWING LUMBER FOR KENNEY'S NEW HOUSES. SHORTS AND TURNER, WERE BRICK MASONS. MOVING HOUSES FROM THE COUNTRY INTO THE NEW VILLAGE BECAME SUCH A MAJOR ENTERPRISE THAT WM. PERRY CAME HERE FROM ATLANTA, AND FOR TWENTY YEARS DID NOTHING BUT MOVE HOUSES. NEW STORES KEPT COMING. THOMAS COOLEY HAD A GROCERY STORE, N. H. MATTHEWS, A HARDWARE STORE, CHARLES STEVENS AND RILEY YOACUM OPERATED RESTAURANTS, FRANK PENCE AND J. R. BOPKIN HAD LIVERY STABLES. I. B. GALLAGHER A FURNITURE STORE, AND FRANK ROBBINS A DRUG STORE. C. LAWRENCE HAD A BARBER SHOP, JAMES BATEMAN WITH HARNESS AND SADDLES. J. H. CROMWELL AND JAMES WALLACE OPERATED SALOONS AND GEO. COURTNEY [illegible] R., 1 ROOM J. C. KIRBY HAD A BOOT & SHOE

AT THIS TIME, JOHN KENNEY, WHO OWNED THE LAND ADJOINING KENNEY ON THE WEST, LAID OUT KENNEY'S FIRST NEW ADDITION TO THE ORIGINAL VILLAGE. A NEW HOTEL, THE ST. CLOUD, WAS BUILT AND HAD ROOMS, REGULAR MEALS AND A LUNCH ROOM OPEN DAY & NITE. WITH THE COMPLETION OF THE HOTEL SOME OF THE MERCHANTS PROCURED SITES ALONG JOHNSTON ST. AND BEGAN MOVING THEIR STORES TO A NEW LOCATION.

THE SECOND KENNEY WAS FROM 1877-1889. IN SEPT. 1877 KENNEY'S FIRST NEWSPAPER MADE ITS APPEARANCE. THIS WAS THE KENNEY RECORD AND THE EDITOR WAS G. N. WOLFE. THE VILLAGE BOARD CONSISTED OF JAMES WALLACE, PRESIDENT, TRUSTEES WERE F. M. JEFFERIES, O. D. DICKEY, ROBERT ORR, W. W. JOHNSTON, S. J. METTLIN, AND SAMUEL STEWART. THE POLICE MAGISTRATE WAS JOHN M. GRAHAM AND THE VILLAGE CLERK WAS H. P. RUCKER.

BUILDING CONTINUED THRU THE NEXT SEVERAL YEARS AND IN 1878 AND '79 THE ROBBINS BUILDING WAS CONSTRUCTED. THIS WAS THE MOST ELABORATE BUILDING IN THE VILLAGE. IT WAS A DOUBLE STORE BUILDING, TWO STORIES HIGH WITH THE UPPER STORIES DESIGNED FOR USE AS AN OPERA HOUSE.

FROM 1877 TO 1880 MORE THAN FORTY NEW DWELLINGS WERE BUILT AND THE TWO BLOCKS, NORTH FROM THE RAILROAD, WERE FILLED WITH BUSINESS BUILDINGS.

BY 1882, JOHNSTON OR 'MAIN ST' AS IT WAS OFTEN CALLED DID NOT HAVE A VACANT LOT FROM ONE END TO THE OTHER. PHYSICIANS WERE DR. M. C. MCINTIRE, DR. WM. BURGETT, DR W. H. OUSLEY & DR. W. H. KIRBY.

ON THE EVENING OF MARCH 29, 1889, KENNEY SUFFERED ITS WORST DISASTER OF ALL TIME. IT HAD BEEN A FINE ONE, NOT A CLOUD IN

ORIGINATED IN THE NEARING AND HOWARD STORE, HAD IN ALMOST THE WINKING OF AN EYE, ENGULFED THE ENTIRE BUILDING. IT STARTED NEAR A GASOLINE TANK AND IN A FEW MOMENTS EXPLODED AND SCATTERED FLAMES IN EVERY DIRECTION. EVERY BUSINESS HOUSE, BUT ONE WAS SWEPT AWAY BY FIRE. AFTER THE FIRE MANY OF THE MERCHANTS WERE COMPLETELY BROKE AND COULD NEITHER REBUILD OR RE-ENGAGE IN BUSINESS. SOME LEFT THE VILLAGE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, ANXIOUS TO TRY A NEW START ELSEWHERE. BUT SOME FARMERS AND LANDOWNERS, BEGAN TALKING OF RE-BUILDING THE TOWN. AMONG THESE WERE THE RYBOLT'S, FRUITS AND BUCHANANS THUS A THIRD KENNEY!

IN THE FALL, SEPT. 15, 1898, KENNEY HAD IT'S FIRST STREET CARNIVAL.

ALL THE BUSINESS PLACES ARE LISTED, AFTER THE TOWN WAS REBUILT, FOLLOWING THE 'BIG FIRE', BUT I WON'T LIST THEM NOW. ALSO, SCHOOLS, CHURCHES, CEMETARY'S, ETC- ARE ALL WRITTEN UP. BUT IT IS QUITE A CHORE TO COPY IT, SO WILL STOP HERE. REALLY THERE IS JUST NO STOPPING PLACE.

Dear Mr. Kenney -

The post master here gave me your letter, as my Dad was always the one everyone was referred to for history, dates, etc. He passed away Nov. - 1972 - and so now everyone comes or is sent to me, as I am the daughter.

He wrote two books - Vol. 1 and Vol. 2 on the history of Kenney. The first Volume Consists of 297 type-written pages, and Vol. 2 has 684 pages which are hand written, so I have just copied the title pages about the start of the town. It would be almost impossible to copy it all.

I hope I have helped you a little. I didn't know just what you did want. I wish it were possible for you to read them, for they have some mighty interesting stories and incidents in them. But would it want to send them thru the mail. I gave them to my brother, but he brought them to me to answer your letter.

Sincerely, hope I have helped you in some way. I see on the map, you live near Chicago. We are not too far away, so might be able to visit with you, sometime.

Mrs. Margaret Kenny

Died, at the home of her son, in Marissa, Ill., onOct. 19th, Mrs. Margaret Kenney aged 82 years, 4 otonths and 14 days.

Margaret Lyle was born in County Antrim, Ireland on June 5, 1820, came to America in 1846 and resided near Sparta, Ill., until her marriage in 1852 to Alexander Kenney when she and her husband removed to Grandcote Prairie, near Swanwick, Ill., where she resided most of her remaining days. To this union were born four children, one daughter and three sons. She is survived by two sons—John L. Kenney, of Marissa; and James A. Kenney, of Coulterville; the daughter died in infancy, the husband in 1887; and David T. Kenney, a son, died in 1899.

The deceased was widely known in the community where she resided so many years and was loved by all who knew her.

She united early in life with the Covenenter church at Union and later transferred her membership to the United Presbyterian church of Swanwick. Her illness dates back to last April when she suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which she never recovered. Up to this time she was in remarkably good health for one of her years.

The funeral services were held in Swanwick on Tuesday, conducted by Rev. J. L. Chesnut, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church of Coulterville, and the remains were interred in Swanwick Cemetery.—Marissa Messenger.

GENERAL GUIDE LINES

1. Throughout the application, use the full or legal name. Do not use initials alone. A nickname may be written in "quotes". A woman is referred by her maiden name or if a widow as Mrs. first, middle (maiden name), surname, i.e. Mrs. Jane Ann (Smith) Doe.
2. Dates are to be given day, month, year (20 Jan 1869). All names, dates and places must be complete with proof that will clearly tie each generation to the preceding one. If a date or place cannot be secured, the applicant must furnish a notarized explanatory statement.
3. Places should be cited as town, county or parish and state. (Use common postal abbreviations for states.)
4. Be sure each name, date and place agrees with or is confirmed by the proof sent, if not, send a letter of explanation.

2. The proof sent should be from the best source available; such as birth, death, or marriage certificates, Bibles (with title page and date of publication), wills, probate records, deeds, census, diaries, old letters etc.

3. Family tradition is not proof. Pedigree charts, family groupsheets, undocumented genealogies and membership applications in other lineage societies are not proof.
4. Submit enough documentation to clearly identify each name, date, place, and family relationship for all generations on page two.
5. If a DAR National Number is used as "proof" for some generations, state the applicant's relationship to the member with that National Number. REMEMBER: "Old" applications are often incomplete. It may be necessary to send additional documentation on a previously accepted line.
6. List proof for each generation. Send one copy of the proof listed.
7. Send photocopies or notarized exact transcripts of original records. Never mail the original record; proofs are not returned.
8. Cite author, title, date of publication, edition and page numbers when published books are used as proof. Many books and records are not available at the DAR Library; it is to the applicant's advantage to send photocopies of the published sources.
9. Complete page 3 by listing whom the Revolutionary Ancestor married. If he (she) married more than once, list each spouse and the children by each marriage, only if proof is furnished for the list of children.

2. Under the phrase "My ancestor's services during the Revolutionary War were as follows:", write the complete service. List dates, places, officers, battles or military units if the ancestor had military service. If appropriate, give state or national pension number or bounty land warrant number. Types of civil or patriotic service should also be specifically listed.
3. Under references, list documents, books (and page #) or other authorities used to establish or prove service. Photocopies of these proofs should also accompany the application. Do not use the DAR Patriot Index as proof of service.
4. The applicant's signature in black ink should be identical to her name on page 1. Applicant's signature must be notarized.
5. Have signature notarized. Type or print applicant's name exactly as she wishes it to appear on her DAR Certificate. (On Page One of the new forms).

Supplementals should be prepared in the same manner as an application, using the same standards of documentation. The member should furnish the supporting proofs not previously submitted. The Chapter Registrar alone signs a supplemental after she has reviewed it. Submit the supplemental and the appropriate fee ($25.00) to the Treasurer General's Office.

The Short Form is for the use of an applicant whose parents, grandparents, or great grandparents appear on the application or supplemental of a blood-relative/DAR member. Send the applicant's birth certificate (and marriage certificate, if applicable). If birth, marriage and death records were not previously submitted for the three generations which will appear on the short form, please send photocopies. REMEMBER: "Old" applications are not complete and many dates and places were not given. If all data currently required was not sent with "connecting" paper, a long form must be used and proof submitted.

IT IS ADVISABLE THAT THE APPLICANT WRITE HER NAME AND CHAPTER ON EACH PIECE OF DATA SHE IS SUBMITTING. DATA CAN BE DETACHED ACCIDENTALLY WHILE BEING PROCESSED AT NATIONAL.

ALL PROOFS MUST BE LEGIBLE for they are recorded onto micro-fiche for our files.

PHOTOCOPY THE APPLICATION - KEEP A COPY FOR YOUR RECORDS.

Documented proof must be submitted for all persons in each generation on the application papers to maintain complete data for substantiation of our records and for future reference. If such proof cannot be furnished, a notarized staement stating reasons that the proof is not available must be attached to the application.

Moorhead baptized six children of a John Giffin, a John Giffin, Sr., and John Giffin, Jr., also a daughter each of a Robert Giffin and a Widow Giffin.[i]

Newspaper accounts of the 1760 Boston fire state that it destroyed the homes of Widow Giffin and John Giffin on Batterymarch.[j]

Nova Scotia — A John Giffin was buried near Simon in the old English burial ground of St. Paul's Church in Halifax. His date of death, "6 July 1761, aged 49" made him a year younger than Simon.[k] Like Simon, John Giffin received Crown grants of land in Halifax[l] and near Chester.[m] Perhaps they were brothers.

Others discovered in lists of grantees were Sam'l Griffin, Wm. Giffin, George Giffin, and James Giffin.[n] In a list of funerals held during the year 1780 the names of William and John Giffin appear.[o]

PHONETIC SPELLING IN THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

As phonetic spelling was commonly used during the eighteenth century, it is not surprising that one finds the name Giffin as Giffen, Giffan, Griffin, Griffith. The Giffen version was adopted by at least one branch in the United States. Early records are presented in this genealogy as they were found, plus any additional evidence to assist with identification.

Giffin Families of the United States and Southern Canada

1. SIMON[1] GIFFIN, born circa 1711, in the northern part of Ireland according to family legend, died in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada, 9 Sept. 1774. He was buried there 11 Sept. 1774 in the old English burial ground of St. Paul's Church with his two wives.

The intent of Simon Giffin to marry JENNET LECHMAN was published 24 Dec. 1739 in Boston, Mass. Three weeks later, 21 Jan. 1739 [sic], it was recorded: "Simon Griffen of Boston married Jennet Lechman." The ceremony was performed by a Presbyterian clergyman, Rev. John Moorhead. The Christian name of his wife was probably Jennet, for her gravestone in St. Paul's Cemetery reads: "Jenet Giffen ye wif of Mr. Simon Giffen . . . departed this life Decr ye 27th 1752 aged 34 years."

He married, secondly, in Bridgewater, Mass., 5 Jan. 1758, JENNET (MILLER) BROWN, widow of David Brown who had died 2 April 1753. Although in all known records his second wife's name appears as Jennet, the inscription on her gravestone indicates that "Mrs. Jane Giffin widow of Mr. Simon Giffin died Decr 8th, 1775, aged 59 years . . ." There were no children by this marriage.

It is believed that Simon Giffin sailed from Belfast, Ireland, arriving in Boston, Mass., before 1738/9. He lived in the environs of Boston for a few years and left, circa 1749, to make his home in Halifax, N.S. His early occupation is not known, but in Halifax he was a distiller, and his business interests may have caused him to travel to Boston from time to time. He was living in Halifax when his first wife died in 1752, and he probably lived there earlier. A diary kept by Rev. John Seccombe records that on 4 and 10 Dec. 1750 Simon was in Halifax. (Ref. "Heuvelton to Halifax, A Diary," September 4, 1881.)

Simon Giffin owned property in the south suburbs of Halifax, as well as 500 acres of land in the Town of Chester, N.S. These holdings are described in "Heuvelton to Halifax, A Diary." According to research undertaken by family members (ref. 73), it was reported that he acquired property also in Hardwick, Worcester Co., Mass., but nothing has been found to indicate that he lived there. When he bought land in Hardwick from Joseph Green and Isaac Walker, 3 March 1759, his residence was stated as Halifax. A deed from Aaron and Stephen Forbush, conveying land in Hardwick, 9 April 1759, calls him "of Bridgewater, Mass." In 1769, Elisha Higgins of Hardwick (father-in-law of Simon[2] Giffin) sold to Simon Giffin "of Halifax" land he had taken on execution following a judgment in the Inferior Court at Worcester.

Children, by first wife, baptized in Boston, Mass., by Rev. John Moorhead:

2NS	i.	GEORGE[2], bapt. 3 Feb. 1740.
3	ii.	SIMON, bapt. 5 July 1741.
4	iii.	ELIZABETH, bapt. 13 April 1746; m. JOHN MORRISON.
5	iv.	JOHN, bapt. 28 Feb. 1748.

Simon Giffin's Will, dated 21 June 1768, was presented for probate 14 Sept. 1774 and duly proven. Probate was granted 15 Sept. to Jennet Giffin, widow and relict, sole executrix. The Will reads as follows:

In the name of God, Amen. I, Simon Giffin of Halifax in the Province of Nova Scotia – Distiller, being in good health of body, and sound mind and memory, blessed be God!

Therefore calling to mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to Die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament——That is to say principally and first of all I recommend my Soul to God that gave it and my body to the Earth, to be buried in a Christian and decent manner – As concerning my worldly Estate, both real and personal, I give, devise and dispose thereof in manner and form following, viz – After discharging all my just Debts and funeral expenses –

Imprimis – I give and bequeath unto my betrothed and loving wife, Jennett Giffin, the sole management of the whole of my Estate, both Real and personal, in this province or elsewhere, the interest of which I make over to her as long as she lives to her own proper use and behoof, as also as much of the principle of the whole of my Estate both Real and personal as she thinks proper, or may want during her natural life.

Item – That the remainder or what may be left at her decease, to be equally divided between my children namely – George Giffin, Simon Giffin, Elizabeth Giffin and John Giffin—and as by Accompt, I find I have given considerable sums to some of them, it is my Will that those sums wherewith they stand indebted in their respective accompts, to be deemed and considered as part of said equal division—notwithstanding all the Quibbles and Artifices of Lawyers.

Still constituting and appointing my aforesaid beloved Wife, Jennett Giffin, my sole Executrix to this my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all former Wills and Legacys by me heretofore made.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal at Halifax in Nova Scotia, the twenty-first day of June, eighth year of His Majesty's reign and in the year of our Lord One thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight.

Simon and Abigail appear to have lived in Hardwick until 1766/7 when they were legally separated. She probably moved then to Bennington, Vt., following her parents who, circa 1750, had separated from their church in Hardwick and joined the group that formed another which became the First Congregational Church in Bennington, circa 1762. 3. SIMON[2] GIFFIN (Simon[1]), baptized in Boston, Mass., 5 July 1741, by Rev. John Moorhead, pastor of the Church of the Presbyterian Strangers. He died in Wethersfield, Conn., 6 Nov. 1820, believed buried there.

He married first, in Hardwick, Mass., 24 March 1761, ABIGAIL HIGGINS, born in Eastham, Mass., 29 July 1737, died 24 Nov. 1798, daughter of Elisha and Hannah (Doane) Higgins. (Ref. 1, 5, 86.)

Simon and Abigail appear to have lived in Hardwick until 1766/7 when they were legally separated. She probably moved then to Bennington, Vt., following her parents who, circa 1750, had separated from their church in Hardwick and joined the group that formed another which became the First Congregational Church in Bennington, circa 1762. Mrs. Abigail Giffin remained single until 4 May 1775 when she married secondly, in Bennington, Elnathan Hubbell, widower, who died there 21 July 1788, age 71. She married, thirdly, 26 March 1792, widower James Henderson of White Creek, N.Y. (ref. 87).

He married secondly, Rev. Burrage Merriam officiating, at Stepney Parish (now Rocky Hill) Courthouse in Wethersfield, Conn., 12 Dec. 1771, LYDIA CRANE, born in Wethersfield, 23 May 1741, baptized there 13 June 1745, died 20 Dec. 1813, believed buried there, daughter of Sergeant John and Lydia (Curtis) Crane. (Ref. 1, 76.)

Simon Giffin served in the Revolutionary War. He enlisted 28 Feb. 1777, in a Connecticut regiment; was made Sergeant 29 March 1778; commenced duty as Sergeant Major 12 April 1778; and as Quartermaster Sergeant 18 May 1778. Afterward he held the position of Quartermaster of Samuel B. Webb's 3rd Connecticut Regiment as early as 23 May 1779 and as late as 6 June 1783. His name was placed on the pension roll 12 May 1818, less than 2½ years before his death. During his military service, he kept a diary, also the Quartermaster book in which he set down an account of rations drawn and issued by him. In 1882 these were in the possession of his great-grandson, John G.[5] Belden of Wethersfield, Conn.

In Wethersfield, Simon Giffin was known as a manufacturer of spinning wheels, one of which was still in existence there in 1881. He was considered a good, average scholar and penman for his day. He used to be called upon to write the paper to be read in church called "Putting up Prayers." A letter written by him 3 Aug. 1785 is copied below. Penmanship in the original is remarkably clear; the phonetic spelling is typical of his era.

Although the probable gravesites of Simon and his second wife were unmarked on 23 Aug. 1881, his granddaughter, Mrs. Sally[4] (Johnson) Pasco, said that she thought "he was buried near the Cranes," and later his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Mary[5] (Belden) Bidwell pointed out the graves which she believed to be occupied by Simon and Lydia "as this plot was selected by the [Crane] family in an early day." See "Heuvelton to Halifax," 23 August 1881.

viii. JOHN, d.s.p.

8. DAVID DOANE[3] GIFFIN (Simon[2], Simon[1]), born in Hardwick, Mass., 8 Sept. 1766; died in the Township of Oswegatchie, St. Lawrence Co., N.Y., 2 April 1840; settled in 1800 on land situated on the south bank of the St. Lawrence River, about six miles up-river from Ogdensburg toward Morristown, where he lived until 1840 when he was buried there. This site became known in the area as the Giffin Farm. Possibly the journey to northern New York took him through Bennington, Vt.; clearly he spent four to five years in Fort Ann, N.Y., enroute.

He married 20 June 1792/3, JERUSHA THOMPSON, born 29 March 1771, died in Tn. Oswegatchie, 13 Dec. 1849; daughter of Capt. Rufus Thompson who died during the Revolutionary War in Bennington, Vt. (ref. 13). She was also buried on the Giffin Farm.

David Doane Giffin was a farmer, blacksmith, "maker of nails," a founding trustee of the 2nd Presbyterian Church in Oswegatchie in 1831 (ref. 14), also known as the Stone Church of Oswegatchie, and always devoted to the interests of his town and county. He was a signer of the 8 Feb. 1802 petition to the N.Y. State Legislature to form St. Lawrence Co., and served as a grand juror when the Court of General Sessions convened in Oswegatchie, 1 June 1802, for its first term (ref. 15).

With the help of his oldest sons he assumed the job of constructing five miles of the original Ogdensburg-Morristown highway. As a quasi land agent he assisted new settlers in locating lands in the new county (ref. 15). On 30 April 1811 he was commissioned Captain in charge of a company of Militia by Daniel D. Tompkins, Governor of New York State, and served actively on the frontier during the War of 1812, as did his son, David, and his brother, Edward (ibid.).

His first dwelling was built of cedar logs close to the river. Later he built a home on the highway, which passed through his farm, and the original log house was moved and attached to the new home to be used as a kitchen. (See photo facing p. 6.) (Ref. 1.)

Although one published history of northern N.Y. families calls him David Dodge Giffin, today's researchers find no connection or clue to support the Dodge middle name. On his maternal side, he descended from Deacon John Doane (ref. 17) and was a great-grandson of Dr. David Doane. A professional genealogist who did extensive research in the early part of this century for the Nathan Clark[5] Giffin family arrived at the conclusion that Doane was his correct middle name (ref. 16). In view of this, Doane is used in this volume because it appears to be correct, and it serves to identify him from other David Giffins in the two subequent generations.

Kenney: Political liabilities piled up

By Don Sevener
SI Springfield Bureau

SPRINGFIELD — The governor giveth and the governor taketh away. And then he giveth again.

Nearly eight years ago at the dawn of his administration, Gov. James R. Thompson gave David Kenney the job of administering the state Department of Conservation. Wednesday, he took it away. And in its place, Thompson gave Kenney a new post — heading an agency that doesn't yet exist to oversee historic preservation in the state.

"I think the governor probably wanted me out of this department," Kenney told the Southern Illinoisan in an interview Wednesday. "As time goes on, you make enemies faster than you make friends. And your enemies are more active. So the political liabilities pile up.

Kenney: "The governor probably wanted me out of this department"

"But so what? He's given me a good new opportunity."

Kenney freely acknowledges he made his share of enemies during what he believes is the longest reign over conservation of any director. "Two years ago there was a challenge (to his reappointment) and six years ago there was a very serious challenge. Four years ago, they kind of left me alone."

"They" are environmentalists who disputed Kenney's commitment to their cause and he admits the criticism stung — a little.

"No one likes to be criticized, it's an ego blow. I feel like I'm right and in many cases the criticism had a rather weak basis — like someone pursuing a private agenda and calling it an environmental cause."

For example, he maintains the decision to build a bridge across the Mississippi River in Pike County that opponents say will disturb a bald eagle nesting site is a sound one. "That highway should go through, it's desperately needed and the environment is fully protected. Only those with self-serving motives or who are emotionally swept off their feet continue to oppose the road."

Yet, despite the conflict and controversy, Kenney reviews his tenure with pride.

He cites the modernizing of fish hatcheries that "are beginning to pay big dividends. If I hadn't provided the leadership I did, it never would have happened. At two or three critical points, I almost stood alone insisting on it."

He points to development of a ma-

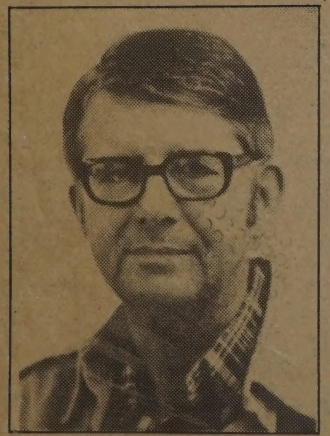
State conservation chief Kenney replaced



David Kenney: Problems with managing

By Mike Lawrence
and Don Sevener
SI Springfield Bureau

SPRINGFIELD — David Kenney, dogged by controversy during much of his stint as Department of Conservation director, was replaced today by Gov. James R. Thompson but given another cabinet-level position.

Kenney, who became conservation chief in 1977 after serving as a professor at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, will head a new agency focusing on preservation of historic buildings.

Succeeding him will be Michael Witte, who has been director of the Department of Energy and Natural Resources. Taking Witte's place will be Don Etchison, who has been director of the Department of Nuclear Safety. And heading the nuclear safety agency will be Terry Lash, who has been Etchison's deputy.

The governor said he initiated the Kenney move. But he stressed he believes the preservation area is a crucial one and expressed confidence Kenney would perform admirably.

Two years ago, Kenney's reappointment was opposed by many. And sources close to the governor indicated then — and recently — there were management problems at the agency.

But Thompson said the conservation department will remain involved in controversies and he lauded Kenney for his accessibility to competing interests.

Also praising Kenney today were representatives of several groups. Among them was Virginia Scott of the Illinois Environmental Council, who said her group hopes to see Kenney's "fine initiatives" continued.

Kenney had been criticized in the past for the department's backing of a proposal to allow coal mining in the Rice Lake Conservation area in western Illinois in exchange for nearby land that ultimately could be developed into a major waterfowl and fishing location.

Critics charged Kenney had surrendered to coal mining interests. Kenney responded the idea was environmentally sound and would pave the way for development of a 10,000-acre conservation area.

The director, however, persistently contended much of the criticism came from "highly irresponsible" persons "who find pleasure in ringing bells of alarm."

"My relationships with responsible environmental groups have been excellent," he once said.

Kenney said today that leaving conservation "is like leaving an old friend."

He said his greatest accomplishment was a "positive, dynamic attitude about resources both natural and cultural."

He added, "We've tried to stress use of our resources over non-use by the public."

Kenney has had a long career in state affairs, dating back to 1970 when former Gov. Richard Ogilvie appointed him as a delegate to the state constitutional convention. In 1973, he was appointed to the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission by former Gov. Dan Walker.

When he took over as conservation director in 1977, Kenney said he would run the agency as a "moderate centrist" rather than simply as a conservation advocate.

"With the outlook for still further declines in energy prices into next year, it's likely the inflation rate in 1985 will be at least as low (as 4 percent) if not lower," he said."

rina at Illinois Beach State Park over objections of "an exceedingly conservative Bureau of the Budget. I had to plead with the governor's office to get that."

He notes expansion of horseback-riding trails, hiking trails, snowmobile trails; completion of a natural area inventory and addition of natural areas; progress in historic preservation; readying a plan that will lead to a $100 million upgrading of state parks and recreation areas.

Most of all, he suggests he brought an attitude to the department that natural resources are to be used.

"I've tried to stress the idea of people doing things in parks and conservation areas. We've expanded the number of trails, we've offered special events such as at New Salem to get people active, we've expanded boat access areas. Lands are meant to be walked over. The earth will heal itself."

And he suggests whatever wounds remain from leaving his old job will heal in the new.

Kenney says Thompson wanted the conservation department to shed responsibility for historic sites preservation because that activity is now overshadowed by the agency's more traditional functions. And he says the governor wants the state historical library and, ultimately, state support of the fine arts added to the new agency.

"I feel very comfortable working in that," Kenney says.

What he expects not to find in his new job are the inherent conflicts — trappers versus hunters, snowmobilers versus skiers, boaters versus swimmers versus fishermen, preservationists versus developers — that marked his old one.

Thompson fires Kenney over 'personality clashes'

By Mike Lawrence
SI Springfield Bureau

SPRINGFIELD — David Kenney, the state's first Department of Historic Preservation director, was fired Thursday after warring with a board headed by the wife of a key fund-raiser for Gov. James R. Thompson.

The discharge climaxed weeks of conflict between the director and the new agency's governing board over personnel matters.

It came as the department was gearing up for its primary mission — the showcasing of historic buildings, sites and documents. It was finalized in a brief but cordial meeting between Kenney and James Reilly, Thompson's chief of staff.

Kenney, one of the Thompson administration's most senior members and the governor's handpicked choice for the preservation post, was told the three-member board had decided he must be replaced in the $55,000-per-year position. The embattled director was then offered a one-year consulting contract but rejected it.

"A well-paid whore is still a whore," the former Southern Illinois University-Carbondale political science professor told The Southern Illinoisan.

Kenney also said he was disappointed the news had not come from the governor, with whom he had been scheduled to meet. "I think it showed a lack of grace and courage on his part."

But Thompson said he decided against interceding in what he called "primarily personality clashes" and "pettiness on both sides" because there "was no clear ground for doing so." He said he decided it was pointless — after reading staff memoranda — to meet with either camp.

"It was one of those two-sided stories, where both have merit and both have demerit," he said.

Because there was "no clear ground" for intercession, he said, "The board is the boss."

He also denied Julie Cellini's involvement influenced his hands-off posture. Mrs. Cellini, who has been acting as board chairperson and who met with Reilly earlier Thursday, is the wife of William Cellini of Springfield, a major downstate fund-raising operative for the governor.

Asked whether Kenney's firing indicates any undue influence, the governor said: "I don't see the relevance of that. Should the wife of a person involved in politics have no interest in history?"

He also praised Cellini and other board members for hiring "first-rate, non-political people" for key state historic positions and said the board was trying to deal with General Assembly cuts in appropriations for agency personnel.

He added Kenney was a professional "who should have known how to work things out with a board."

But he said Kenney "was formerly the senior member of my Cabinet and I have a great deal of affection for him."

Kenney, 63, was appointed Department of Conservation director in 1977 and remained there until last October, when the governor removed him.

At that time, Thompson said he was shifting Kenney into another Cabinet position as the head of a soon-to-be-created Department of Historic Preservation.

The governor created the agency in an April executive order. But he also specified the director would serve at the pleasure of a five-member governing panel.

That panel, the governor ordered, would include three incumbents of a board governing the State Historical Library, which was being incorporated into the new agency.

One of those incumbents was Mrs. Cellini, who could not be reached Thursday. The other was Frank Mason, a political ally of her husband. The governor said they were being guaranteed spots because of their interest and expertise.

But Kenney said Thursday the board tried to "sabotage him" on personnel matters. Among other things, he said, it directed he fire his secretary and administrative assistant.

"They said it was for budget reasons," Kenney said. "But they were trying to cripple me."

"We've got a great thing going here. But I just got sabotaged," Kenney said.

He said he submitted a previously prepared letter of resignation to Reilly at the end of their conversation. "But let's call a spade a spade. The board decided to fire me."

Meanwhile, Thompson said, he will appoint the two additional board members and the five-member contingent will name a successor to Kenney.

Pensioner Kenney to write book

SPRINGFIELD — David Kenney is out of a job, but he's not of work and he's far from destitute.

His removal as the first Department of Historic Preservation director means the 63-year-old Kenney can begin collecting his pension as a retired state university professor.

It also means, he said Thursday, that he can return to Carbondale to write a new book and to update another one.

"I'm going to be busy," Kenney said.

He plans to author a book on the administration of William G. Stratton, who governed Illinois from 1953 through 1961. "I think that was an interesting era."

And he also envisions updating a 10-year-old textbook on state government.

"I'm going to stay in Springfield a few months and then I plan to return to Carbondale by next June at the latest. I still own a home there," he said.

In Carbondale, Kenney said, he hopes the university will provide him with office space. He said there are also excellent research facilities there.

His financial condition will also not deteriorate significantly, Kenney said.

"I won't be missing any meals," he quipped.

Prison transforms even good intentions

DAVID HALE is one of us.

He's a native of Southern Illinois, a father and a husband. But his job took him behind the walls of the toughest federal prison in the nation, the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion. And in the course of 5½ years in that emotional pressure cooker, Hale — by his own admission — strayed into violence by abusing inmates.

It's unlikely we'll ever know how much of David Hale's story is true: whether there were widespread beatings at the federal prison in late 1983 and early 1984, whether there was an active attempt by the administration to cover up the beatings.

What is increasingly apparent from Hale's testimony at a federal court hearing this week was that not everthing was done by the book at the U.S. Penitentiary in the chaotic days of fall 1983.

It's ironic that during 28 days of court testimony that stretched from January to July, both inmates and guards testified to the desire for revenge, even death, after the

Our hyperinventive age—1885

By Malcolm W. Browne

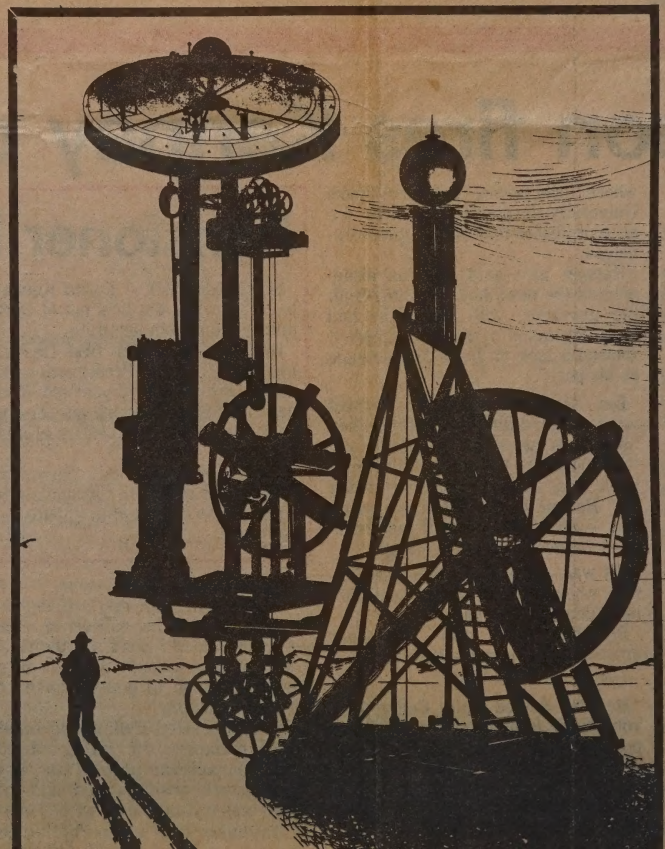
NEW YORK — What an exciting thing it is to be alive in this hyperinventive age!

Just think of it: In 1984 alone, our government issued no fewer than 72,149 patents, a good 20 percent more than in the previous year. What's more, papers laying claim to scientific discoveries are proliferating faster than the professional societies can create journals to publish them. If that isn't progress, what is?

Of course, there are killjoys here and there who contend that the trend is inflationary, that a glut of second-rate ideas is flooding the market. They argue that since the juiciest professional plums go to those scientists and engineers who publish the most patents and papers, quality no longer matters; it seems to make little difference, they say, whether a given piece of work will light the world or merely the kitchen refrigerator, so long as it gets published.

Never mind. Let the scoffers take note of some of the choice inventions for which patents were issued in recent months: a filter for reducing noise in mobile telephones; a voice-activated air conditioner; a way of printing dehydrated food samples onto a page; a new type of barbed wire, and a device for eliminating commercials from television programs. Oh, and we shouldn't forget the bathtub lift, or the car seat for pets!



it's still around.

There was some science in the mid 1880s, too. Louis Pasteur conducted the first human inoculation against rabies in 1885, and his admirers have since claimed that Pasteur did more for public health than any scientist before or since.

About the same time, Pierre Curie discovered the piezo-electric effect, which ultimately gave us microphones, ultrasonic diagnostic techniques, quartz watches, upscale cigarette lighters, and much more.

And one mustn't omit mention of that crafty Maine-born inventor Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim. In 1885 he presented the world with the machine gun, an implement that changed the nature of warfare forever.

Smokeless powder, indispensible to really efficient mechanized killing, was another 1885 invention; wars have been immeasurably bigger and bloodier since black powder became obsolete.

Come to think of it, almost everything with which we ride around, prepare our food, power our homes and industry, dress ourselves, combat infectious disease and kill each other depends to a large extent on ideas that were hatched in 1885 or thereabouts. The technological colossus was just emerging from its chrysalis at that point, and a clever man with a new idea could go far.

Alas, the mother lode of inventive possibilities is no longer easy to mine. The digging up of scientific Things have changed. The Cumberbatches are black. And the head of the household, Ernie (John Amos), is an old-school, '60s civil-rights liberal. His son Thurgood Marshall Cumberbatch, known as Goodie (T.E. Russell), is an outspoken young conservative who dates a Jewish woman (Maura Tierney).

Other than that, the Cumberbatches are just like the Bunkers: They argue over politics constantly.

Tonight, as the family settles down to watch Goodie's appearance on "Face the Nation," a war of words breaks out with insults flying left and right, so to speak.

Albeit predictable, the firefight is intelligent and entertaining. Trouble is, it's nowhere near as shockingly fresh as when Archie and The Meathead clashed on issues such as abortion, homosexuality, feminism and race when "All in the Family" hit the air 23 years ago.

one of the great pieces of social legislation in the history of our country," Kenney said.

Post-war America was suffering from an enormous economic and spiritual backlog, coming off an exhausting war and more than a decade of economic depression.

"A lot of suppressed energy was bottled up," Kenney said. "Many elements of the country were on hold; they were going nowhere. We weren't building roads, we weren't building schools, we weren't building hospitals. We were just existing."

That wouldn't sit well with returning veterans. That suppressed energy was especially felt among young servicemen, Kenney said, who were fueled by a brassiness and enthusiasm that came from winning a war.

"I think the people who served in World War II came out of it by and large with the feeling they could do and accomplish anything they wanted to," Kenney said. "They felt pretty cocky."

Those different elements came together to provide the perfect backdrop for the GI Bill, which would open the doors of universities to the middle class for the first time. Kenney said that in 1940, only 5 percent of America had ever been to college.

After several decades of the GI Bill, the number attending higher education was closer to 40 percent, he said. More important than making it affordable, the bill made it mentally possible for future generations to think of college as a legitimate option.

Before then, most farm families needed the help of their children to run the family operation. And leaving home and family responsibilities — especially when no family member had ever done it — might have seemed self-indulgent.

"People came out of cultures where something like going to college was not possible," he said. "It seemed extravagant, perhaps disloyal."

But the GI Bill was the first step in making universities a more egalitarian place, and making higher education more of an expectation.

It also ended up helping build the country at a remarkably fast rate. Kenney said those pioneers in college became a large professional class of engineers, physicians, attorneys and teachers.

"I'm just amazed at the growth of the United States in the past 50 years," he said. The growth of suburbs, the creation of an interstate system, the rapid growth of the television industry and the computer revolution would not have been so fast without the GI Bill, he said.

Simon said the GI Bill's impact is completely ingrained in our thinking today — it's made higher education a right rather than a privilege.

Millions of American professionals owe it all to the GI Bill

By Brian Mattmiller
Of The Southern Illinoisan

When a new wave of young adults graduates from American high schools this summer, the fact that close to 60 percent of them have college plans will hardly be surprising.

But only 50 years ago, higher education in America was still an elitist pursuit, considered financially out of reach or extravagant to most Americans.

America got from there to here on the back of a famous World War II veterans benefit called the GI Bill of Rights, which sent millions of soldiers to college and helped revive a dormant country.

The GI Bill turns 50 years old this year, and many people are starting to measure the impact it had on higher education and beyond.

"The whole thing was designed as kind of a 'thank-you' to veterans for a job well-done," said U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda. "It turned out to be a huge investment in our nation's prosperity. One of the reasons we moved ahead so fast was the GI Bill."

Passed on June 22, the "Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944" was designed to provide a smooth transition for veterans returning from World War II service. Among other benefits, it provided veterans with free tuition and fees at the university of their choice, as well as a modest monthly living allowance to help them through.

It was an enormously popular option, and it opened the enrollment floodgates at universities across the country. Most campuses grew so fast that military barracks had to be transferred from federal bases to college grounds to help accommodate the rush.

Department of Veterans Affairs statistics show that 7.8 million veterans received college training in the World War II era through the GI Bill. Another 10.5 million veterans attended college either during or after the Korean War in the 1950s.

David Kenney, a visiting political science professor at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, was one of the millions to take advantage. He completed a bachelor's degree in 1946 and a master's degree in 1948, both in education, at SIUC through the GI Bill.

Kenney, who was state Department of Conservation director under former Gov. James Thompson, said the bill paid for all his tuition and fees over three years, which probably didn't amount to more than $2,000 total. He received another $75 per month for living expenses. He estimated the total benefit amounted to $5,000 over three years.

As far as benefits go, Kenney said it wasn't a big compensation for soldiers who put their lives on the line to achieve victory in World War II. But as a social policy, it was brilliant beyond anyone's estimates.

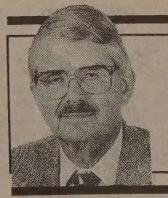
Netsch's primary win puts tax reform within state's reach



David Kenney

The chief significance of Dawn Clark Netsch's victory in the recent Democratic gubernatorial primary almost certainly does not lie in the fact that she is the first major party candidate of her sex for that office in Illinois.

No doubt the gender factor will be a significant variable in the contest for governor in November. But the greatest importance of Netsch's win lies in the blow it struck at the myth that any candidate for governor in Illinois who even thinks of an increase in the state income tax rate is doomed.

That political falsehood has been perpetuated in our state by wealthy and corporate taxpayers who have sought to keep the Illinois tax structure as regressive as possible. A regressive tax system bears heavily on the poor and lower middle class to the advantage of the affluent.

Evidence often cited in support of the myth are Dan Walker's two political victories in 1972 — over Paul Simon in the Democratic primary and Gov. Richard Ogilvie in the general election. Yet other variables made the difference between Walker and his two opponents. He had charisma: Tall, athletic in appearance, with rugged good looks, he was a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and an attorney who was a self-made success in the corporate world.

The contrast between Walker and the bespectacled, bow-tied, professorial Paul Simon, who was known by the voters to the point of boredom after almost two decades in public office, was overwhelmingly in Walker's favor. The fact that Simon had truthfully said during the campaign that an income tax increase might be necessary had little to do with the election outcome.

Walker had another advantage when he went up against incumbent Ogilvie in the general election, and that was his much-publicized walk of more than 1,000 miles in 1971, across the length and breadth of the state. With that hype and his other personal advantages, Walker was able to edge Ogilvie out by the narrow margin of 1.65 percent of the vote. The fact that Ogilvie had favored the state's first modern income tax was far less significant in his defeat.

The myth of the magic of income tax espousal as a political kiss of death was shaken in 1990 when Jim Edgar, who favored retaining the temporary tax surcharge then in effect, defeated Neil Hartigan, who did not, for governor.

Then Netsch won the Democratic primary for governor while clearly favoring an income tax increase for education in tandem with property tax reduction, over two opponents who each were against a tax increase. She will face Edgar, who prevailed easily in the Republican primary against an opponent with strong anti-tax views, in the general election.

Edgar this time has refused to say, as he did in 1990, that he is opposed to an income tax increase. Netsch's position has given Edgar more freedom to manuever on the tax issue, and he is likely to take advantage of it. His position on taxes will not pressure Netsch to retreat from her policy. For the first time in many years, it appears that political dynamics offer a reasonable chance to move the state's tax policy in the direction of the public interest.

The public's capacity for intelligent decision making is often greater than its representatives seem to realize. An income tax made more progressive by either a graduated rate, adequate exemptions, or both, is in the interest of all who are of limited or moderate means. The poor have the most to gain from an improved income tax policy. The poor and those of lower-middle income have the political power to craft a tax system that will serve them best, if only they have the leadership and will to exercise it.

The public is neither dogmatic nor ideological on tax issues. It wants results — not ideological purity. It wants better education services to fit its children to make a living in a more technological world, better corrections and public safety services, and less reliance on a cruelly regressive property tax system. All these desired ends seem more within the grasp of Illinois voters than they have for many years.

Natural heritage:

Conference sees remnants of prairies, bluffs, and woodlands as priceless 'antiques'

By Ben Gelman
Of The Southern Illinoisan

Our natural heritage in Illinois consists of a few remnants of prairie, bluffs and woodlands, and we should preserve them like the priceless "antiques" they are, John Voigt said Saturday.

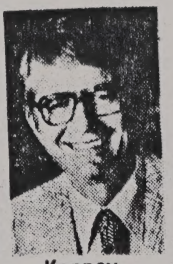
Voigt, professor of botany at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, summarized the Natural History Conference, "Our Natural Legacy," held at Rend Lake College, Ina.

Voigt told the nearly 200 participants at the conference of the "important lessons" about our environment that can still be learned from the bits of virgin forest and hidden scraps of prairie remaining of what were once vast stretches of towering forest and waving grass.

"It is important for us to realize the contribution an individual can make in this effort to protect," he said. "We must each make this effort. The world is a beautiful place, and it deserves our commitment."

In keynoting the conference, David

Voight



Kenney

Kenney, former SIU-C political science professor who is now director of the Illinois Department of Conservation, warned that if Illinoisans do not preserve and defend their natural legacy, it will disappear "chip by chip, bit by bit," until nothing is left.

Kenney, a native of Southern Illinois whose great-great-great-grandfather Michael Harmon settled in 1813 in what is now Randolph County, said the need for maintaining places where people can find solitude is one of the important reasons for preserving our remaining natural areas.

"How long has it been," he asked, "since you have been really alone, quiet, with no sound of cars, radio or human voices? Try it, it heals the soul."

Kenney said he had such an opportunity recently to get away from his busy schedule.

"I took 20 minutes of it, turned to leave, couldn't break away. I took 15 more minutes, again tried to leave, went back for a final 10 minutes of that healing quiet. It's worse than booze!"

Besides the value of solitude, Kenney reminded his listeners of the aesthetic benefit of the natural areas and the link they provide with our cultural heritage.

"The aesthetic component is of enormous importance to people," he said. "They hunger for it. Preserve the forest, the bluff and the river for their psychological reward."

Kenney warned that those defending the remaining natural legacy in Illinois will be under tremendous pressure from well-meaning people with day-to-day practical concerns — agriculture, mining, transportation, industry, urban sprawl, to name a few. He urged his audience to be steadfast in the face of these "hazards to the natural world."

He advised those managing natural areas for the future to keep in mind the need to set aside funds for continued acquisition of more natural areas.

Finally, he suggested that the natural areas should be given the broadest possible use, compatible with their preservation and well-being.

This is necessary, he said, to strengthen public support, diffuse the benefits of natural areas to the widest possible degree and spread the cost of management among the greatest number of people.

Between the Kenney and Voigt presentations, the conferees broke into smaller groups to hear panel discussions on six subjects. The sessions covered "Preservation of Natural Areas in the Shawnee National Forest," "Natural History of Southern Illinois," "Endangered Species Protection and Management," "The Private Landowner: Attitudes, Incentives and Responsibilities," "Presettlement Plant Communities of Southern Illinois" and "Management and Use of Natural Heritage Sites."

Today, participants took part in a series of field trips to natural areas of Southern Illinois.

The conference was sponsored by the Illinois Nature Preserves Commission, Illinois Department of Conservation, Illinois Endangered Species Protection Board, Illinois State Historical Society, Illinois Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America, Illinois Chapter of The Nature Conservancy, the Natural Land Institute and Rend Lake College.

(The Southern Illinoisan plans a full page of stories and pictures on the conference in next Sunday's edition.)

12-1980

...SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Pere Marquette State Park, its visitors and the Sierra Club are the "real losers" of this week's appellate court ruling prohibiting commercial logging there, according to David Kenney, director of the Illinois Department of Conservation.

"The department has neither the equipment nor the money to remove about 2,063 dead or dying trees from an area of the park ravaged by fire in 1974, Kenney said.

AS A RESULT, sunlight through open spaces in overhead foliage will cause scrub growth, spoiling the vistas and hiking opportunities, Kenney told The Globe-Democrat.

The park is near Grafton, about 30 miles northwest of St. Louis.

The Sierra Club had accused the department of attempting to compromise the ways of nature for the sake of profit from the timber.

Edmund "Ted" Woodbury, former president of the environmentalist organization's Great Lakes Chapter, said he was "very pleased" with Monday's 4th District Appellate Court ruling in Springfield.

He said awarding permission for private logging would have set a precedent for damage to other state parks.

KENNEY, WHO had been out of town and did not learn of the judgment until Wednesday, insisted the department did not expect to profit from the operation, which he said would have removed only about seven trees per acre.

Agitated at a court ruling he called "most unfortunate," Kenney complained, "The Sierra Club could have planted a forest with the money it spent."

Woodbury said Tuesday that as much as $12,000 had been spent for the litigation, all raised through donations.

Kenney said fears of timber harvests at other state parks were unfounded.

The Ball Family

Sources:

COLONEL WILLIAM BALL of VIRGINIA The Great-Grandfather of Washington by Earl L. W. Heck, published and sold by Sydney Wm. Dutton, 103, Newgate Street, London, E. C.1. MCMXXVIII, (on file at National Genealogical Society Library, 4527 17th Street North, Arlington, VA)

Colonial Virginians and Their Maryland Relatives, by Norma Tucker (located at Montgomery County Historical Society, Rockville, MD)

This line is of interest because of its famous son, George Washington. He had no children of his own, but there were cousins in the Ball line. His great-grandfather, Captain William Ball, was Eve Ball Taylor's grandfather.

"The surname Ball, according to the best authorities dated from Norman times and is a shortened form of Baldwin, which family were for many generations Counts of Flanders. In fact, William the Conqueror married Matilda, the daughter of Baldwin VIII, and many of his immediate family came to England. After the Conquest the name apppears to have been shortened and was spelt various ways as Balle, Bale, Baell. Bradley points out that Baell corresponds to the Anglo-Saxon Bael, meaning funeral pile; while Ball is only a partial equivalent of the Saxon Bald, meaning bold." (Heck)

There seems to be agreement that the name means one who is bold enough in battle to win, not bald, as in no hair. (Heck)

Of Burgh, Suffolk.

-1.1 Thomas Atherold (1590) and Hannah Harvey
A barrister-at-law, who was living at Gray's Inn during 1610-1611. He apppears to have been the son of Thomas Atherold, of Burgh, Suffolk and Mary Vessey. Hannah Harvey's father was John Harvey (Heck) See Colonel William Ball, below.

-1.1 Reverend Richard Ball
Educated at Magdalen College, Oxford, where he took the degree of Batchellor of Arts in 1590 and Master in 1594. He was the second Professor of Rhetoric at Oxford. In 1603 he became vicar of St. Helen's Church. Dr. Ball left St. Helen's the year he received his coat of arms. (Heck)

1. Colonel William Ball (1615) and Hannah Atherall (Atherold)
Born in England and educated in or about London. Evidence shows that he was married July 2, 1638, to Miss Hannah Atherall or Atherold, the daugher of Thomas Atherold. He probably left England soon after the death of King Charles I., about 1650. He had studied law in England, and later interpreted the principles of Common Law for fellow Virginia colonists.

He was a soldier "under Fairfax," and served in the Royal Army and took part in the (English) Civil Wars, remaining true to the royal standards and serving faithfully under the banners of the ill-fated King Charles. He was probably present at the battles of Naseby and Marston Moor. When the Royal Army was defeated, Colonel Ball lost the greater part of his considerable estates. In company with other royalists he fled to Virginia, the most loyal of the king's possessions, and last to surrender to Cromwell's authority.

Colonel William Ball probably had a brother in Virginia. He did not apply for a land grant until at least 8 years after arriving in 1650. It is thought that he was waiting out the bad times at home and planned to return with the Stuarts were returned to the throne. He seems, however, to have operated a vessel between England and Virginia during this time. He first appears in the Colonial records as a Merchant, probably a tobacco merchant.

Jack Overton

After 1660, William Ball took an active part in the religious, political and social life of Virginia. In 1660 he was a member of a court to make a treaty with the Indians and to establish a boundary for the occupation of land by the white men. He first received the title of Colonel in 1672, the year he was the County Lieutenant of Lancaster. If you held such a rank, you may have earned is as a member of the General Court of Virginia.

"This august and aristocratic body was always composed of the class known at that time as 'gentlemen,' men of wealth, family and influence, and whose official station added much to their influence. They, with the Governor, formed the executive council, who dispensed the entire patronage of the colony in the way of official appointment, at the same time that each individual himself was himself commissioned 'Colonel' by royal authority...The Governor was Lieutenant-General, the Councilors, Lieutenants of Counties with the title of Colonel, and in counties where a Councillor resided, some other person was appointed with rank of Major." (Introduction to Vo. I. Calendar Papers, by Palmer)

It is probable that Colonel was not a member of the General Court, since his name does not appear as a member of the General Court, but, was a Colonel of Foot or Horse and not County Lieutenant. He was doubtless Presiding Magistrate and Colonel Commander of the County. He served on various committees in Lancaster County from 1675-7. He was presiding member of various courts held in Lancaster County.

On March 28, 1675-6 he and Lieutenant-Colonel John Carter were empowered by the General Assembly of Virginia to mobilize men and horses to defend the colony against Indians. Their leader was Nathaniel Bacon.

On August 14, 16777, he was present at a meeting to discuss taxes being imposed by the General Assembly to put down Bacon's rebellion.

From 1670 until his death in 1680 he was a member of the Burgesses of Lancaster County.

He eventually became a planter, and on January 18, 1663, received a grant of land on Narrrow Neck Creek in Lancaster County. Four years (apparently after promotion to Major) he received a joint grant of 1600 acres in the County of Rappahannock on the north side of the river of the same name together with Thomas Chetwood. A few months later he acquired 300 acres of rich bottom land adjoining the estate of Daniel Fox, who later became the Colonel's son-in-law.

He built a beautiful Georgian mansion on his Lancaster County estate, which he named Millenbeck, probably after some place in Warwickshire or Northamptonshire. The estate was held for four successive generations by William Balls and played a prominent part in Virginia history.

Colonel Ball was a zealous supporter of the Virginia branch of the Church of England. He and John Washington were wardens of Christ Church, Lancaster County.

George and Judith Ball had 8 children—Williamson, George, John, William, Hannah, Judith, Sarah, and Elizabeth. The last-named George m. Mrs. Elizabeth (Hughlett) Payne, widow of Merriman Payne (VI-3). For marriage of other children, see Hayden's "Va. Genealogies".

5. SUSANNAH (d. 6) oldest child, b. in Lc. Co.; m. Capt. Hugh Brent 6 Sept 1750 in Lc. Co. He m(II) Easter (or Hester, or Esther) Shearman 1761 in Lc. Co. He was Vestryman, Churchwarden, and Justice in Lc. Co. He was second cousin of Hannah Brent who m. Devall Payne (B-V-7) 1785. See BRENT notes.

1775 on the division of her father's estate, Susannah's share went to her son James Brent.

6. WILLIAM (s. 6) b. @ 1733 in Lc. Co.; m. Mrs. Anne Edmonds 1759 in Nb. Co.; d. intestate 1761 in Lc. Co. Nov 1759 he applied for portion of estate of William Edmonds, whose widow he had just married.

Mr. Edmonds, who was of St. Stephen's Par., Nb. Co., d. 1758, leaving a will naming w. Anne (with child), son Elias (a minor), and brothers Robert and Elias; Kenner Cralle (pronounced Crawlay) was to assist in administration. Kenner Cralle was also William Payne's administrator 1761. See EDMONDS notes.

1760 William Payne's father left him land in Lc. Co. called Murdock's, 2 slaves, and half-interest in a mill. Mrs. Anne Payne m(II) William Matthews Cralle 6 Jany 1762 in Nb. Co. 1767 Mrs. Frances Payne (IV-6) was appointed guardian of William Payne's only child—George (15).

7. ANN (d. 6) b. in Lc. Co., third child; m. Moses Lunsford of Nb. Co. 19 Feb 1762 in Lc. Co.

LUNSFORD

Moses and Rodham Lunsford were sons of John, who d. in Nb. Co. @ 1739. Their sister m. John Sutton. There were probably other brothers and sisters.

Moses was b. @ 1718 in Nb. Co.; he m(I) Rachael Miller 1743-4 in Nb. Co.; m(II) Ann Payne (D-V-7) 19 Feb 1762 in Lc. Co., at which time she was about 28; m(III) Elizabeth. There were children by his m(I) and m(II), but none by his m(III). Just which children were by his m(II) I cannot determine. He lived 1741 in P.W. Co. and St. Co., and returned to St. Stephen's Par., Nb. Co., before his m(1). 1770 he and w. Ann executed a joint deed. 1779 he bought land in Lc. Co. from John Payne (12). 1780 he was guardian of Richard H. Payne (VII-27) of Wiccocomoco Par., Nb. Co. Moses Lunsford's will, dated 1790 (1790), names w. Elizabeth and children—(1) Deceased son Moses, whose 6 minor children are named as William, Augustine, Sterling, Seth, Judith, and Moses. Of these children, Judith m. Cyrus Haynie 1816 in Lc. Co., and Moses m. 1811 his cousin Sally, dau. of John Lunsford of Lc. Co. (2) Rodham, who heirs in Lc. Co. (3) Richard, who receives testator's home-place. (4) Betty, widow of John Gibbons. (5) Wilmouth Coppedge. (6) Hannah Nelms. (7) Catherine. (8) Frances.

Of these, John was n.m.; he left a will dated 1792 (1794), naming his sister Wilmouth Coppedge's children Griffin, Charlotte, Mary, and Augustine as heirs. Catherine Lunsford m. Henry Cundiff 1790 in Nb. Co. Frances m. Presley Nelms 1794 in Nb. Co.

Rodham, son of John, d. in Lc. Co., leaving a will dated 1791 (1791). I think he m(11) Lettice Carter, widow, 1774 in Lc. Co. His will names children John, Rodham, Linton (a minor), and dau. Judith Carter, who has a child.

Of Rodham's children, John m. Sarah Ellen Carter 21 Mch 1783 in Lc. Co. He lived on Corrotoman River. He had, among others, Sally who m. her cousin Moses Lunsford 1811; and John who (I think) m(1) Lettice L. Carter in Lc. Co. and had several children, and (11) Mary Ann Payne (A-VIII-44) 17 Dec 1837 in Alabama. A published list of Lc. Co. M.B.s gives John's m(1) in 1817, which seems a bit early since he was b. 1800. Rodham, Jr., m. Sally Cox 1794 in Lc. Co. Linton m. Frances Carter, dau. of James, 1803 in Lc. Co. Judith m. Edward Carter 1790 in Lc. Co.

The last-named John Lunsford was b. 7 Mch 1800 in Lc. Co. and d. 10 Oct 1856 in Ala., having moved there from South Carolina. His supposed marriage to Lettice L. Carter 1817 is based on the fact that he is known to have been a widower when he m. Mary Ann Payne. His children by his m(1) settled in Texas. By his m(11) he had 9 children—George Albert (1838-1893), Richard William (1840-1841), William Major (1842-1881), Susan Ellen (1843-1917), Mary Ann Payne (1845-1859), Emma Jane (1847-1860), Isabella Virginia (1850-1852), Richard Asbury (1853-1854), and John Winter (1856-1860).

Of these, George Albert, b. 19 Oct 1838 in Gainesville, Ala., m. Susan Wilson of Portsmouth, Ohio, 19 Feb 1861; moved to Birmingham, Ala.; d. there 3 May 1893. William Major, b. 15 Mch 1842, m. Leonora Dupree 1 Feb 1872, d. 1 Jany 1881, one son William Edgar. Susan Ellen, b. 18 Oct 1843, m(1) Austin Choat 23 Feb 1865 and had 3 children; m(11) George Knowlen 6 Feb 1876 and had 2 children; d. 1917 in Birmingham.

George Albert had 6 children—(1) William George (1865-1926), m. Nora Lee Simpson 1885 and had 1 child William George of Sawyerville, Ala., 1937. (2) Susan Jane, b. @ 1868 in Birmingham, m. John Randolph Copeland 1890, d. 1913 in Birmingham. See (A-VIII-42). (3) May, b. 1870, m. Frank M. Griffith 1892, lived in Memphis, Tenn. (4) Sarah Elizabeth, b. 1872, m. Robert B. Malone 1895, d. in Birmingham 1927. Their dau. Susan E. (Mrs. C. O. Vardaman) has been very helpful in the write-up of the Alabama Lunsfords. (5) Annie, b. @ 1874, m. J. W. Fain 1897, d. 1923. (6) John Linton, b. 1876, m. Maude Robinson of Scottsboro, Ala., residence—Birmingham, 1 dau.

8. GEORGE (s. 6) b. @ 1735 in Lc. Co.; m(1) Nancy Houson (pronounced Howson) in Sept 1756 in Nb. Co.; m(11) Mrs. Elizabeth Craven 15 July 1767 in Nb. Co.; d. in Wicomico Par., Nb. Co., leaving a will dated 12 May 1766 (12 Feb 1770) naming his four children, for whom guardians were designated. Mr. Moses Lunsford, Mr. Richard Mitchell, and Mr. Richard Stephens were named as executors.

7 Sept 1756 George Payne, Jr., of Lc. Co. signed an agreement with Nancy Houson, whom he was soon to marry, stating that she was dau. of late Richard Houson, Gent., of Wicomico Par., Nb. Co., and ward of Samuel Downing. Richard Houson's will was recorded 1743/4; his wife was Judith, who d. 1772, leaving a will naming guardians for George Payne's children. Richard was son of Capt. Leonard Houson of Nb. Co. and w. Anne Fleet, dau. of Henry Fleet, Justice of Lc. Co.

Charles Craven of Nb. Co. and w. Rebecca had 4 children—Elizabeth, Francessina, Rhoda, and Lucy. Francessina m. Samuel L. Mahanes; Rhoda m. Eben Nelms; Lucy d.y. Elizabeth m(1) John Everitt, whose will is dated 1757 (1758) in Lc. Co. He had 2 sons—Thomas and Craven. Elizabeth m(11) George Payne. 1764 George Payne was appointed as Craven Everitt's guardian.

1762 and 1767 George Payne, Gent., took oath as Justice in Nb. Co. 1763 he was Vestryman of Wicomico Parish. 1783 census of Nb. Co. shows Betty Payne as head of family in Lc. Co.; she was probably George Payne's widow.

THE O'NEILLS OF ULSTER - A TURBULENT HISTORY
An interview with The Lord O'Neill

by Sarah Powell

"...the reed-fringed and bird-haunted silences of that vast lake, Lough Neagh" belie Ulster's, and Ireland's, turbulent history. On the north-east shore, the ruins of Shanes Castle, home to the O'Neill family for hundreds of years, provide some inkling: "The strong ruined towers and the long battlemented terrace overlooking the lake and defended by twenty-one guns indicate that the castle in its prime was a formidable structure"*... as indeed it needed to be in those days of warring septs and kingdoms, and foreign invasions, when Ulster was "the last great stronghold of Gaelic tradition".

Shanes Castle

From the earliest days of Ireland's recorded history the island was riven with discord within and between families, kingdoms, islanders and invading forces... Centuries before Shanes Castle was built, the Ui Neills, or O'Neills as they became, were legendary in these struggles because of their dynastic power as one of the "Five Bloods of Ireland" – the island's old royal houses. The O'Neills were undoubtedly the most important Irish royal family in history, and today are one of the oldest traceable families left in Europe.

Burke's Peerage & Baronetage shows the family's earliest ancestor to be Eochu, dubbed Mugmedon ("Lord of Slaves") because of his slave raids on late Roman Britain. Eochu was King of Tara in c. 360. His son Niall Noigiallach ("of the Nine Hostages") took hostages from other kingdoms, securing recognition and taking the title High King of Ireland, an immensely prestigious, albeit nominal, title, and one which his descendants assumed with few interruptions until the mid-thirteenth century – a remarkable record.

The Burke's family entry show that King Niall had five sons whose descendants created five Ui Neill septs, two in the north of the country, three in the south. These septs aspired to dominate the whole of Ireland but they needed first to settle continuous infighting among themselves. The solution agreed was that the principal line of the kings of the north, the Cenel Eoghain, should alternate as holders of the high kingship with the principal line of the southern kings of Meath, Clann Colmain. Even this, though, did not always mean peace because of continued internal squabbling...

A source of significant family conflict through these early centuries was the system of succession under Gaelic law which conferred equal rights on the derbhfine, the group of sons, grandsons and great-grandsons of a former king. In the case of the Cenel Eoghain, the ancestors of the O'Neills, the heir to kingship or tanist was the eldest surviving son of a king. The aspirant had to ensure both that he had no elder brothers and that his father would die during his lifetime, which led to the battles between brothers and the frequent slaying of fathers so vividly documented in the O'Neill family history. There were other requirements too. The heir was to be free of any physical blemishes, and of age but not senile. In addition he was required to have led a successful cattle raid and to marry a princess.

The great Gaelic lords of Ulster

The two northern Ui Neill septs ruled territories which corresponded broadly to present-day Ulster including Donegal, and these septs gave rise to two great dynasties: the O'Neills and the O'Donnells. The Cenel Eoghain sept was descended from Niall's son Eogan who was baptised by St. Patrick in AD 442 at a well in Ailech (which remains today) and became the first Christian Irish king. The O'Neills trace their ancestry to Eogan, King of Ailech.

The other northern Ui Neill sept, the Cenel Connaill, was descended from Niall's son Conall Gulban from whom the O'Donnell family traces its ancestry. An ancestor of particular renown is St. Columba, founder of several monasteries in Ireland and of the abbey on the tiny island of Iona to the west of the Isle of Mull from which he despatched missionaries to spread Christianity in Scotland and Northern England.

It was, however, the tenth-century Niall Glundubh ("Black Knee"), one of Ireland's most famous high kings, who gave his name to the family. When Niall was killed fighting the Vikings, his second son, Muircheartach na Cochall Craicenn ("of the Leather Cloaks"), King of Ailech, carried on the battle, eventually establishing ascendancy over all Ireland on behalf of his father-in-law, Donnchadh, chief of the southern Ui Neill and, at that time, High King of Ireland. Muircheartach's second son, Domnall, High King of Ireland from 956 to 980, assumed the surname Ua Neill ("Grandson of Neill"), thus establishing the family name.

The following centuries saw continuous battles between the septs. As Burke's relates, one of King Domnal's descendants, Aedh Macaemh Tóinleasg ("The Lazy-arsed Youth"), King of the Cenel Eoghain sept from 1176 to 1177 and heir to the high kingship of Ireland, famously avenged his father and restored O'Neill power in the north, which had been usurped by the Mac Lochlainns, distant cousins of the O'Neills who were descended from Lochlann, a grandson of Domnal Ua Neill. In 1177 Aedh was killed battling against his successor, Maelsechlainn Mac Lochlainn. Aedh is the common ancestor of the two main branches of the O'Neill family: the senior branch of The O'Neill of Clanaboy which is descended from Aedh's eldest son, Aedh Meth ("The Fat"), and The O'Neill of Tyrone, the junior branch descended from Aedh's youngest son, Niall Ruadh, ("The Red-Haired").

FOR A CHRISTMAS OF MEMORY

When alone I often sit and think
Of the days of long ago
When we had Dad and Mother
And were young and gay you know,
Can't you picture Mother at her work,
Humming a gospel song?
Preparing a meal, or mending 's shirt?
She was busy the whole days long.
I can even remember
When she'd chord on the organ and sing
And we'd all join in on the chorus
What happy memories that does bring.
Later, they had one of us try to play
But with ours, their voices they'd blend,
I love to live over those happy days,
And wish they'd had never an end.
I love to recall how our dear big Dad
Would accompany himself and sing
"The Song of Songs" was the title one had
Oh, we loved him enuf for a King!
He was always so jolly and full of glee
We never tired of his tales
And we'd beg him to tell them o'er and o'er
Tho' we knew them as well as he.
Now at this holiday season
When everyone is glad and gay
We can look each with fondest thoughts
And think of those good old days
Remember our Christian dinners
When our table was filled with the best.
And Daddy praised Mothers cooking
And didn't we eat with zest?
Those days are nothing but memories now
Yet sweeter than riches are they

We wouldn't exchange for the wealth of a King
These memories of by' gone days.
Oh let us treasure fond memories
Of all loving Mother and Dad
And a home always full of sunshine
And think not of days that are sad
Perhaps with this world's treasures
We are not richly blest
But with kindness and joy and laughter and song
They filled up our treasure chest.
So now to all my loved ones
Be they far or near
I wisha Joyful Christmas
And a gay and bright New Year.

Lovingly dedicated to my brothers and sisters December 1934
Myrtle Fulton McClelland

No. 1.

#2659

State of Illinois } ss. Of the July Term A D 1863, of the Perry County
County of Perry } ty: Court, for transaction of Probate Business.

To the Honorable James Hemphleman County Judge of Perry County State of Illinois, presiding and holding Court in said County for transaction of Probate Business. Your Petitioner Sarah McNeill would respectfully represent and shew to your Honor that She is the Wife of Thomas McNeill for whom Charles L. Peters was appointed Conservator by order of this Court on the 20th day of January A D 1863; Said Thomas McNeill having been found by the verdict of a jury impannelled to try that question, to be incapable of managing his own affairs, and a fit person to be placed in the Care of a Conservator. Your Said petitioner would further Shew to your Honor, that She as the Wife of said Thomas McNeill was entitled to receive said appointment of Conservator, being next of kin to said Thomas McNeill - That She was not a party to said proceedings and had no notice actual or constructive of said proceeding - that she never relinquished her right to said appointment in favor of said Peters or any one else. That said Peters is a man whom the said Thomas McNeill and all his family object to, owing to the existence of long standing difference between said Thomas McNeill and the said Charles L. Peters.

That said Peters sought said appointment solely to vex, harrass oppress and irritate your Petitioner and her husband the said Thomas McNeill - that since the appointment of said Peters as Conservator the said Thomas McNeill has been and is far worse in his mental debility than ever before, being unable to talk or even speak of the said Charles L. Peters without becoming almost a maniac, especially when he supposes said Peters is to take to your Honor that since the appointment of said Peters as Conservator for said Thomas McNeill, he said Peters has taken possession of all the available effects belonging to said Thomas, retains possession of those effects, consisting of two horses, one carriage a lot of Wheat, one set of double harness and one two horse wagon and one yoke of work cattle — — — — — — — and has used them in and about his own work and business — leaving the family of said Thomas McNeill wholly without any way to travel through the neighborhood or procure their fuel — that said Charles L. Peters has wholly failed to provide necessaries for the said Thomas McNeill and his family, consisting of your petitioner and a daughter of said Thomas McNeill residing with them, said Peters having furnished them but one load of wood in five months and offered to furnish one sack of flour and a few pounds of bacon on or about the 16th June A.D. 1863; that said Peters has never, since his appointment furnished anything else more than above Stated; neither tea, coffey, sugar or any other necessaries has been furnished said Thomas or family, while said Peters has had a sufficient amount of moneys and effects in his hands since April A.D. 1863, to have induced him to have done so if necessaries only has been using the property of said McNeill without accounting for the same or providing necessaries as he should have done, but is injuring and destroying said property and not preserving it as he said Peters is in duty bound to do, Your Petitioner would further shew that since his appointment said Charles L Peters has declared his intention to so arrange the estate and effects of said Thomas McNeill, that in case of the death of said Thomas McNeill not one dollar of said effects and estate should ever reach the hands of an administrator — that he said Peters is an improper person to act as Conservator for the said Thomas McNeill and should be removed for neglect of duty as such and for the reasons herein before Stated

Wherefore your Petitioner prays that said Charles L. Peters be summoned to appear at the July Term A.D. 1863 of this Court for probate business, and answer this petition - that upon full hearing and proof of the allegations herein contained your Honor will order and decree the removal of said Charles L. Peters from the office of Conservator for the said Thomas McKeil and appoint your Petitioner or some fit person to act as such Conservator and that your Honor will make such other and further order and decree in this behalf as may be deemed just & right, and your petitioner as in duty bound will ever pray &c

Tennessee he was elected to the legislature from Knox county. He died in Illinois in 1809. One of his sons, Joseph A. Beaird, became a prominent citizen of Monroe county, which he represented in the state senate for several terms. Another, William A. Beaird, was sheriff of St. Clair county from 1818 to 1830.

Among the additions to the settlement east of Kaskaskia in 1801 was Joseph Heard, who first settled on Garrison hill, and then improved a farm on Gravel creek, two miles and a half north of Chester, in later years the property of Joseph B. Holmes. His son, Hugh Heard, settled two miles north of his father, in the neighborhood of Diamond Cross, and the farm on which he lived was long known as the "Old Heard farm." After living on this farm many years Hugh Heard removed to Wisconsin. James Heard, a brother to Hugh, located still farther north, and made a farm on which he lived to old age. Joseph, William and James, were sons of the latter. With Joseph Heard came George Franklin who improved a farm in section twenty-two, of township six, range seven, and afterward removed to the neighborhood of the present town of Pinckneyville in Perry county.

In the year 1802 the arrivals became more frequent and the settlements began to expand over wider territory. John Fulton, the same who as Governor Reynolds relates, brought with him to Illinois Rollin's Ancient History, came from Tennessee, and settled east of Kaskaskia, in the vicinity of Robert Reynolds. He made a valuable addition to the community, and was active and foremost in promoting the public welfare. His sons, Thomas, David and Cyrus, lived afterward in the same neighborhood. The two former died there, and the last removed to Marion county. William Roberts came from Lexington, Kentucky, also in 1802, and settled east of the Kaskaskia river, in the neighborhood of Ellis Grove, where he improved a farm. He was a man of enterprise and shrewdness, and traded down the river, becoming well known along the banks of the Mississippi between Kaskaskia and New Orleans. He died in 1822. His son, Thomas Roberts, was nearly of age at the time of the settlement of the family in the county. He settled on a farm near his father. For many years he acted as justice of the peace. He was a member of the county commissioners' court from 1828 to 1834. His death occurred in 1858. One of his nine sons, Daniel Preston Roberts, was the last register of the land office at Kaskaskia, receiving his appointment in 1853, and continuing in the office till its removal to Springfield. John and Ephraim Bilderback came in 1802 Ephraim settled east of the Kaskaskia. He was a man of great industry, and paid close attention to his farm. His sons were William, Stuart, James, Charles, Franklin, Henry, Ephraim, Thomas and John. William removed to the extreme southern part of the county, where he entered land as early as 1814. Charles also settled in that part of the county. John Bilderback, the brother of Ephraim, was in the ranging service during the war of 1812–14. He died without children.

Robert Tindall, of the Chester district, South Carolina, in 1802 began improving a farm five miles northeast of Chester in section thirty-two, of township six, range six. This was the first settlement in that vicinity. He undertook the erection of a water mill on a small stream flowing through his farm, but before its completion it was washed away by the floods. He then built a horse mill near his residence which was in operation for some years and proved a great advantage to the neighborhood On Mary's river, about four miles above its mouth, Benjamin Crane, with a family of seven sons, whose names were Benjamin, Squire, William, James, Joel, Lewis, and John, settled probably in 1802, though by some the date is placed earlier. The Cranes were men of decided character, and were the leading citizens in the country adjacent to the mouth of Mary's river. On the west side of the Kaskaskia river, near the mouth of Camp creek, Paul Harelston made a settlement in 1802. He was a man of considerable influence and prominence in early times.

The vigorous and influential Irish settlement, east of the Kaskaskia, in the neighborhood of Plum creek, from which have sprung many of the leading citizens of the county, was founded in 1802. These colonists were of Irish blood, Presbyterians in religious faith, and came to Illinois chiefly from the Abbeville district in South Carolina. They were known in Randolph county as "South Carolina Irish." They had the same energetic traits which have marked the Scotch-Irish stock in all parts of the United States, and left a lasting impression on the county. James Patterson was the pioneer of this settlement. He was born in South Carolina. His father had come to America from Ireland, and had taken part as a soldier in the war of the Revolution. He arrived in the year 1802, and settled on the site of the present town of Preston. He was a man of great energy and activity, and always maintained a high standing in the community. He filled the office of justice of the peace for several years, and in 1819 was chosen a member of the county commissioner's court. He was a ranger in the war of 1812–14. About the year 1819 he moved to the neighborhood of Sparta, and there died in 1829. His four sons, John, Samuel, Reuben, and James Harvey, became well-known citizens of the county. Robert Huggins came from South Carolina in 1803, and lived for some years in the Irish settlement, and then removed to the Opossumden prairie. His son, James Huggins, settled in Flat prairie, about the year 1817, and improved the first farm in that prairie. The descendants of Huggins lived afterward in Perry county.

In June, 1803, Abijah Leavitt, came to Fort Gage as a sergeant in Col. Pike's division of the regular army sent to garrison the fort. He was from Bangor, Maine He obtained a discharge from the army, and settled a mile back from Garrison hill, on section twenty-nine, of township six, range seven, where he improved a farm, on which he lived for many years. In early life he had been a sailor. He was a quiet, industrious citizen, and was held in esteem by his neighbors. Edward, John, George, and Abijah Leavitt were his sons. Edward, the oldest, was born on the Ohio river, on the way to Illinois. Two of the sons are yet living, and Abijah lives on the old farm on which his father settled.

Numerous and valuable additions were made to the Irish

The labors of the county court were performed by justices of the peace, three of whom would form a quorum, until January, 1810. A territorial law, passed December 22d, 1809, created county courts, to be composed of three judges who were appointed by the governor. Before proceeding further we would here introduce a LIST OF TOWNSHIP OFFICERS—1809.

Justices of the Peace.—The early Justices of the Peace held their offices by appointment, and it was not until 1827 that the people were deemed competent to elect their township judicial officers. The general view on the subject seems to have been that the dignity of the "Squire" would be or was in danger of being lowered by the vulgarity of elections.

The governor of the territory appointed the justices at the suggestion of the county commissioners, or "at will," and the commissions issued to those dignitaries smack of monarchical origin, his excellency the governor using the plural number of the personal pronoun when referring to his own person.

The following gentlemen seem to have acted as justices in 1809:

Philip Fouke, William Arundel, Henry Levens, Pierre Le Conte, P. Harralson, David Anderson, Jean B. Barbeau, Robert Gaston, Archibald Thompson, John Guithing, John Edgar, James M. Roberts, John McFerron, John Bradshaw, Samuel Omelvany, George Robinson, George Hacker, Jas. Lemon, Thomas Ferguson, Hamlet Ferguson, John Phelps, and Marion Fuller.

Overseers of the Poor.—Ralph Drury, John Evert for Mitchie; Clement Drury, Pierre Le Conte, for Du Rocher; John Gibson, A. Langlois, for Kaskaskia; Joseph Clendenin, Henry Leven, for Williamsburg; John Beaird, Paul Heilston, for Springfield; George Hecker (Hacker), and Squire Green for Mississippi; Hamlet Ferguson and Frederick Grater for Massac; James Ford and Samuel Omelvany for Rocking Cave.

Overseers of the Highways.—Jesse Reynolds for Mitchie, Pierre Auguste for Du Rocher, Jesse Griggs for Kaskaskia, Thomas Levin for Williamsburg, James Hughes for Springfield. For the newly organized townships Rocking Cave, Massac, and Mississippi, no appointments were made.

Constables.—Jesse Griggs and Samuel Davis for Kaskaskia; Michael Masterson for Mitchie; John Langston for Mississippi; Joseph M. Courtney for Marie; Antoin Le Chance for Du Rocher; James Laird, Springfield.

Licensed Taverns in 1809.—Pierre Le Compte, at Prairie du Rocher; Philip Fouke, at Kaskaskia; Thomas Cox, at Kaskaskia; Jonathan Taylor, at the United States Saline; James Truesdale, on the road leading from U. S. Saline to Shawneetown; James Lane, do. do.

The first county court of Randolph county, composed of the Worshipful Philip Fouke, William Arundel and John McFerron, met at the tavern of Thomas Cox on the 4th of January, 1810, and proceeded immediately to levy a tax for the county and also a territorial tax on lands located.

The county tax levy was as follows: Each single man, not having one hundred dollars' worth of taxable property, was assessed one dollar; owners of slaves had to pay for each slave one dollar per year; horses were taxed fifty cents and neat cattle ten cents each; each mansion valued at two hundred dollars or more, all mills and distilleries, were assessed at the rate of thirty cents per one hundred dollars valuation. The numerous ferrries were also a source of revenue, and the year 1810 saw the following ferries licensed, to wit: Ephraim Carpenter, William Cheek, John Edgar, Pierre Menard, James Ford, each ten dollars; Hamilton Ferguson at seven dollars; James Fulton and William Morrison each at six dollars; Charles Bradley, Louis Baorke, Thomas Ferguson, John Robinson, Richard and Waller, each five dollars; Jonathan Hampton at four dollars; John Morris, James McHorton and John May, each three dollars.

The revenue of the county derived from these levies was small, as the land taxes proper were collected for maintaining the territorial government only. From a settlement mentioned in the county records of August term 1809, it appears that the county revenue for the years 1807 and 1808, the collection of which was entrusted to sheriff James Gilbreath, amounted to $1,593.18, of which $944.97 had been collected and accounted for, while $213.50 of the revenue of 1807 and $435.71 of the revenue of 1808 were returned delinquent. The sheriffs of those days had a hopeless task to perform in collecting a few hundred dollars of taxpayers, whose homes were scattered through all the territory between the Mississippi, the Wabash and the Ohio, nor is it to be wondered at that nearly every one is accused of being in default. The expenses of those infant counties, though insignificant in the whole, invariably exceeded the revenue, and sufficed scarcely to defray court expenses, rent of rooms and salaries of officers; improvement of roads and building of bridges was out of the question; but let it be said in honor of those pioneers, that they contrived to find means to aid the poor and helpless. We mention here that the authorities in 1809 paid Thomas Cox $144 a year for keeping Thomas Branham, a blind man. Thus it is shown that about one-sixth of the whole revenue was expended in support of one unfortunate fellow-being! In extreme cases the aid of the territorial government was extended to the helpless, as for instance in the case of Julian Bart, who had been drafted to serve a tour of duty as a militiaman during the past summer, and while in service and obeying the orders of his officer, was shockingly wounded, having one arm shot off and the other broken in different places, his body lacerated and his eyesight greatly injured, and now lies in a most distressed situation in the town of St. Louis, dependent on the bounty of a poor family; and whereas it would be cruel to permit him to linger out a miserable existence, rendered so in the service of his country, without the support which it is able to afford him, therefore it is ordered by the governor that the auditor draw warrants for such sums of money as may from time to ganization of the territory of Illinois, the whole territory formed one judicial circuit until 1818. The judges during this period were Obadiah Jones, Alexander Stuart and Jesse B. Thomas, appointed March 7, 1809. Stuart resigned in March, 1810, and was succeeded by Stanley Griswold. William Sprigg was appointed July 29, 1813, and Thomas Fowles October 28, 1815, and reappointed January 16, 1816.

This General Court of the Illinois Territory held its first term at Kaskaskia on 12th day of September, 1809. Present: The Honorable Judges Alexander Stuart, Obadiah Jones, Jesse B. Thomas. The names of the grand jurors were:

Isaac White, foreman; Samuel Cochran, William Simpson, William Daniels, John Manis, John Hibbins, William Chaffin, John Worley, Ephraim Bilderback, Josiah Cox, Jacob Bowerman, William Stiles, John Murphy, John Phelps, Thomas Griffin, Samuel Omelvany, James Steele, Gershom Clemons, Alexander Blair, William Alexander, John Bradshaw and Owen Evans.

The grand jury thus assembled had a vast amount of labor before them. The most interesting case was that of The United States versus James Dunlap, a physician at Kaskaskia, and Michael Jones, "gentleman," also of Kaskaskia. Before going into the details of the indictment and subsequent trial, a few words should be said in reference to incidents preceding the indictment.

Rice Jones, son of the well-known John Rice Jones, first lawyer of Illinois, had had difficulties of a political nature with several gentlemen at Kaskaskia, and in consequence a duel between him and Shadrach Bond had been arranged. The parties met on an island between Kaskaskia and St. Genevieve. When the principals had taken positions and the word was about to be given, Jones' pistol went off by accident. Dr. James Dunlap, Bond's second, claimed that it was Jones' fire, and that Bond might now fire at Jones; but Bond, the chivalrous and high-hearted Marylander, disdained doing so; in fact, the duel ended right there and the controversy was amicably settled on the spot. The incident gave rise to a bitter quarrel between Rice Jones and Dr. James Dunlap, who was urged on by Michael Jones and others to persecute Jones in every way imaginable. The threats against Rice Jones' life had become very loud towards the close of the year 1808, so that John Rice Jones saw proper to address the following note to Elija Bachus:

KASKASKIA, Nov. 25, 1808.

Sir—I have just heard of your threats of yesterday, that if my son did not go out of the country, he should in a few days be put out of existence—"it will be done, it shall be done." I now inform you that he will remain here, and if he should be murdered either by you or through your instigation, I shall know where to apply. I must, however, confess that the threats of poltroons can be considered in no other light than as those of assassins.

Yours, JOHN RICE JONES.

On the 7th day of December, 1808, while Rice Jones was standing in the streets of Kaskaskia, in conversation with a lady, Dr. Dunlap stole up behind him and shot him dead with a pistol. This murder created great excitement in the community, and Dunlap had to flee the country.

The grand jury, after bringing in an indictment against Dr. James Dunlap for murder, also indicted Michael Jones, "gentleman," because he did, on the 6th of December, 1808, incite, move, abet, etc., feloniously and with malice aforethought, the said James Dunlap to commit the crime of murder.

The prosecuting attorney, B. H. Doyle, obtained the consent of court for a continuance of the trial on the affidavit of Archibald McKnabb, an important witness, being sick and unable to attend court. A continuance was granted, and Michael Jones, who had insisted on a speedy trial, was admitted to bail in the sum of $3,000. His securities were John McFerron, Shadrach Bond, Jr., Thomas Leavens, Henry Leavens, Henry Connor and Samuel Cochran—all of the best people of the county, the f. f. of Randolph.

Michael Jones was tried on the 10th of April, 1810, before a jury composed of William Rector, Paul Harralson, Thomas Wideman, William McBride, John Anderson, George Franklin, David Anderson, John McFerron, Henry Connor, George Creath, Jacob Funk and James Fulton. It will be observed that two of his bondsmen, McFerron and Connor, were members of the jury that tried Jones' case.

Michael Jones was acquitted, but the court exonerated the "prosecutor" (John Rice Jones?) from paying the costs, as there were probable grounds for preferring the indictment.

Another Murder Case.—James McGlaughlin, indicted for the murder of Thomas McGlaughlin, was tried on the 13th of September, 1809, before the following jury: John Anderson, Robert Hill, Thomas Stubblefield, John McFerron, Joseph McCourtney, John Howell, Robert Penny, Thomas Leavens, William Evert, Thomas Fulton, William Dees and Robert Huggin, who brought in a verdict of guilty, whereupon the court sentenced James McGlaughlin to be hung on the 23d day of September, 1809, in or near Kaskaskia. The writer could not ascertain if the execution took place or not.

Two others, Robert Hays, "yeoman," and Jesse Canada, "laborer," indicted for the murder of Thomas Allen, were tried and acquitted.

John Boren, "laborer," indicted by the same grand jury for clubbing Samuel Billingsley to death Nov. 20, 1808, as also Hosea Boren, for aiding John, had their cases continued and were nolle pros. April 10, 1810.

Several grievous cases of assault and battery were tried and ended in the conviction of the fighters, who had to pay pretty heavy fines, from 12 to 60 dollars. Francis King, indicted for breaking into and burglarizing the store of James Wilson, was tried by a jury and found guilty whereupon the sheriff was ordered to take King Francis to some "convenient" spot and there give him "39 lashes on his bare back, well laid on."

Moses Canada and John Gibson, indicted for stealing "one gelding of a black color" from sheriff Stephenson, were acquitted.

Nelson Rector, the old surveyor, had had "difficulties with Benjamin H. Doyle (U S. Attorney), and had administered a terrible cudgeling to him on the first of June, 1809. The grand jury could not ignore this outrage, and so we read on the records of that term:

Nelson Rector, surveyor, being a person of a terrible, cruel, fierce and inhumane disposition, and wickedly having in his heart rank malice and ill will towards Benjamin H. Doyle, on the 1st of June, 1809, did beat the said Doyle with a round stick or cudgel, cruelly and barbarously, striking him diverse, terrible, grievous and dangerous blows upon the head and hands, to the manifest danger of life, etc. Rector had the case continued, and on the 10th of April, 1810, confessed the allegations charged against him in the indictment, and put himself upon the mercy of the court, who fined him $60.00 and costs. Doyle was not satisfied with this sentence, and now brought suit against Rector for damages. In his declaration he stated that Rector felled him to the floor with a blow of the cudgel, and then continued beating him mercilessly until he left him for dead, etc., etc. The case was subsequently dismissed, Rector paying costs.

It is somewhat strange that neither the grand jury nor the petit jury had any French among them, but it also should be stated that no French names are to be found among those indicted.

PROBATE COURT. 1809.

William C. Greenup, clerk of the county court, transacted the probate business of the county on his own responsibility. The entries made on the records are not in chronological order. The first one, dated July 9th, 1810, has reference to the estate of Jean B. Godfroy, deceased, and grants letters of administration to Louis Buatt in the following language:

William C. Greenup, clerk of the county court of Randolp to Louis Buatt, Greeting:

Whereas, Jean Baptiste Godfroy, late of this county, deceased, died intestate as it is said, I do therefore give and grant unto you full power and authority to administer, etc., etc.

The estate of said Godfroy, consisted in a sorrel horse three years old, valued at $20.00, and one arpent of land in front extending from the bluff to the Mississippi, lying in the big prairie below Prairie du Rocher, and was appraised at $60 00 by Jean Baptiste Gendron and John Doyle.

Then comes an inventory of the estate of John Beaird, dated March 13th, 1809. Beaird must have been farming extensively; the inventory mentions seventeen horses, worth from $45 to $100 each, two yoke of oxen, wagons, plows, six sets of harness, etc., a "mulatto negro" worth $350, and a black boy worth $250.

Prices paid at the sale: Corn, ten cents per bushel, one barrel of pork, $10.00, one half dozen of pewter plates, $2.50. The negro boy "Berry" was sold to John Beaird, Jr., for $450, the other brought only $225. Mrs. Elizabeth Worley paid $120 for a bay mare; twenty acres of wheat in the field brought $65, and a pot trammel $4.25; cows sold for nine, ten and twelve dollars, but a "mulley" brought $13.15, purchased by Monsieur Archambeau; one yoke of oxen sold for $60.00 and the other for $17.50. The sale amounted to $2,273.20.

On page twenty-five of said record is found the following will, which was in all probability drawn up by some justice, who had but recently written out a deed.

Illinois Territory, }
Randolph County. } Know all men by these presents, that I, Isaac Allen of said county, being in a low state of health but yet in my right mind, do render my soul to God, and my estate to my wife and children in the following manner, and this is my last will and testament to stand against all other previous to this. This I acknowledge to be my last will and testament, in witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 19th day of May, 1810. ISAAC ALLEN.

The testator seemed to have been sure of his early demise, inasmuch as he fixed the day of sale, nor was he mistaken, for the records show, that the will was probated on the 23d of June, 1810.

of Elias Kent Kane, the senator, and was also witnessed by him, James L. Lamb, and Patrick Kevenaugh. The will is dated Septr. 4, 1823. The contents of the will are as follows:

In the name of God, Amen. I, John Edgar, of Kaskaskia, in the state of Illinois, being sick in body, but of sound mind, memory and discretion, knowing the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, have made this my last will and testament, and do hereby declare and will as follows:

Item first: Whereas on the 25th day of November in the year 1823, I executed in contemplation of my late marriage with my dear wife Eliza, to the said Eliza a bond in the penal sum of $20,000, conditioned for securing to the said Eliza over and above her dower, the sum of $10,500, now therefore for the purpose of satisfying and fully complying with the conditions of said bond and in order to provide a suitable maintenance and support for my said wife Eliza, I do hereby devise and bequeath to my said wife in full property and domain the house wherein I now reside, in the village of Kaskaskia, together with the lots adjoining the same and together with all my household furniture, I also for the same purpose give and bequeath to my said wife my mills, distillery and ferry on the East side of the Kaskaskia, together with all the lands belonging to and adjoining the same. James Thompson, Probate Judge from May 16, 1831, to April 27, 1837, from and after which day the judge signed his name as probate justice of the peace. He remained in office until after the adoption of the Constitution of 1848, when he was superceded by Hon. John Campbell, first county judge of Randolph county.

SLAVERY IN RANDOLPH COUNTY.

Readers may wonder at this caption. Slavery in Illinois! Why, the very ordinance of Congress creating the territory northwest of the river Ohio, decreed that neither slavery nor involuntary servitude should exist in it. How, then, could that institution be established? The fact is, that the ordinance of July 13, 1787, found slavery in this as well as in other parts of the vast territory.

The first slaves were brought to Illinois by Antoine Crozat and his followers about the year 1713. King Louis XIV. of France had, on the 14th of September, 1712, granted to said Crozat letters patent to the vast regions extending from Upper Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Crozat arrived in 1713, and commenced mining operations in the vain hope of finding precious metals. His followers were suffering with climatic diseases, and therefore a number of blacks were imported from the French West India Islands. Crozat's exploits, however, failed entirely, and he returned to France in 1717, surrendering his patents to the crown.

Frangois Renault (properly Renaud), manager of the affairs of a company of adventurers, sent out by the "Company of the Indies," to whom the royal domain refused by Crozat had been granted in 1719, brought 500 negro slaves to Illinois, landing them at the site of the "ancient village of St. Philip." His contract stipulated that he should bring at least six thousand whites and three thousand blacks to Illinois within twenty-five years from the date of his grant (1719).

By the condition of the peace of Paris, February 10, 1763, the territory was ceded to England, and on taking possession of it in 1764, General Gage, commander in chief of the English troops in America and governor, issued a proclamation in the name of the crown of England, December 30, 1764, in which all the rights and privileges heretofore enjoyed by the then inhabitants of the ceded territories were guaranteed to them. Sieur Stirling, captain of the Highland Regiment brought this proclamation to Kaskaskia in person. Virginia in her turn [1779] readily guaranteed to the inhabitants of the conquered territories all their prior rights and titles of whatsoever description, and when the old Commonwealth ceded and deeded the territory to the United States, the rights and privileges etc. were guaranteed again by the latter. Hence it was afterwards strenuously contended that the famous ordinance of 1787, prohibiting slavery conflicted with the deed of cession and was therefore not binding in effect, as slavery had legally and legitimately existed in the territory.

This view, however was not taken by the judicial authorities of the territory at the earlier period as will appear more fully from the following proceeding and order of court of Sept. 1798.

It appears that a certain negro, formerly a slave, had found his way into the territory and that his case was taken into court, in order to make a test case of it. Guy, the negro in question appeared before his honor, Judge John Cleves Symmes at Kaskaskia on the 22d of September, 1798, when the following proceedings were had. Guy in making his application for certificate of freedom subscribed the following affidavit, to wit:

Guy, a negro man aged about 30 years who being duly sworn according to law deposeth and sayeth that he formerly lived with and belonged to Adam Lawrence of North Carolina who moved to and settled on Green River in 1793, and that his master and "him" agreed, that he [Guy] and his wife, also a slave of said Lawrence, should stay with him until they had made 1000 bushels of corn for him, but that after having raised and delivered 750 bushels of corn on lands first cleared by them, his master sold him to one Robert Mitchell of Massac who had come to his masters house with school, all the branches named in a first grade certificate are taught.

These branches have all been taught at some time in the other two graded schools. Miss Holt taught some of the first grade branches while she was Principal of Tamaroa. During her last term of service the School Board prohibited the teaching of any but second grade branches, and the first grade has been taught but little in this school since then. About one fourth of the teachers in the ungraded schools are qualified to teach first grade branches, and most of these do teach some of them.

On August 25 and 26, 1882, sixty-nine applicants for teachers' certificates were examined. Fifteen of these received First Grade certificates; thirty-five received Second Grade, and nineteen failed of coming up to the lowest standing, on which the County Superintendent issues a certificate.

Du Quoin and Pinckneyville are the only points in the county at which there are many colored children. At each of these places a separate public school for them has been kept for several years past.

The few of them who reside in other districts attend the common school with the whites.

Du Quoin Female Seminary.—Was located about five miles southeast of Du Quoin, in what was then known as Du Quoin, and now known as Old Du Quoin. Next to the County seat, it was the largest village in the County. This institution should be named in this history as having been an important factor in improving the public schools. It came into existance through the influence of an eastern teacher, (Miss Paine, of South Hadley, Mass.,) sent out by an Educational Society in answer to an application for a teacher for this locality.

Miss Paine commenced her teaching in the District School-House June, 1852. More scholars came in than the house would accommodate, so a room was fitted up in another building, and a second teacher (Miss Reynolds, from Connecticut,) sent for, and employed to assist Miss Paine in her work.

In the fall of 1853, Miss Paine opened a private school, which became the Seminary after a charter had been obtained from the Legislature, and a Board of Trustees appointed. The corner-stone of an excellent Seminary building was laid June 13, 1855, and a permanent superstructure was erected in a reasonable time.

"To train teachers on the field" was laid down as the prominent object of the school. Teachers' diplomas were given to those that became proficient in the branches required by the school law of this State; and those that went out from this institution to teach, made marked improvements in the schools where they taught.

Rev. Josiah Wood devoted himself largely to the welfare of the Seminary. The early teachers, as copied from a catalogue, were Miss E. Paine, Miss Jane Hunt, Miss M. M. Moulton, Mrs. E. R. Saunders, Miss H. L. Plimpton, Miss Lizzie A. Dole, Miss Hattie Paine.

The debt contracted in erecting the building, caused it to pass into private hands in 1872. Since it became private property a school for both sexes has been maintained with creditable success.

SUPPLEMENT.

Since writing the foregoing, I have gathered the following additional statements respecting the schools in each of the precincts, into which the county is now divided, from such sources, that I believe them reliable:

Pinckneyville.—The first school in this precinct, was taught in a log school house 16x16 in 1831, near the West side of Four Mile Prairie, at $2 50 per scholar for six months.

In 1832, Eliza Smith, from Kentucky, taught in a small log-school-house near Thomas Armstrong's. Later S. W. Woodside taught here.

June 3d, 1833, the Sheriff, by order of County Court, leased the Court-house for school purposes at fifty cents a month, to be paid by the teacher, or by the subscribers to the School Article.

Paradise.—The first school in this precinct was taught in 1830, by John S. Haggard.

A man named Hagaman taught in another part of the precinct at the same time. No building was erected for school purposes previous to 1838. Up to this time schools were taught in the house of the teacher, or in some deserted cabin. The first teacher in the new school-house, was R. P. Paramore. Obadiah West was also an early teacher in this precinct.

Du Quoin Precinct.—The first school in this precinct was taught by Abraham Brayshaw, about 1830, in the west part of Nine Mile Prairie. The first school-house was erected about three and a half miles south of where Du Quoin now is, and a Mr. Beneldo was the first who taught in it.

Tamaroa Precinct.—The Bland school-house, about five miles northeast from Tamaroa, was erected in 1832 or '3, and named after "Grandfather" Bland. First teacher was Jacob Walker, and the second teacher was "Granddaddy" Johnson, who taught in 1834.

Cutler Precinct.—The first school was taught in Lost Prairie, by Miss E. Tilden. The first school-house was erected on section 16, T 5, S. R. 4 W, in 1835, in the same prairie. John Cooper taught in it during the summer of 1835. About the same date a school was taught for a short time in Conant's Prairie, but it could not be kept up.

Grand Cote Precinct.—The first school was taught in a little cabin, on S. E. ¼ of sec. 30, T. 4. S R. 4 W. The next school was taught by John Fulton, in his kitchen on sec. 4, town 4, in 1835 or '6.

Beaucoup Precinct.—The children who resided west of Hutching's Prairie, at first attended at "Big Rock" school-house, in Washington county. Those who lived east of this prairie, attended school in Mud Prairie. The first school-house was erected on Edward Hodge's place, the second on the Truster place, in 1850.

Southwestern.—Robert Clark taught the first school in 1825, in a little log school-house, erected the same year. The architecture of the school-houses named, in connection with the several precincts, was similar to the description, given by Messrs. Eaton, and copied in the former part of this sketch. Books were also much the same. In some schools, the American Preceptor, Columbian Orator and Pike's Arithmetic, were used also.

the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Concord, Hill Prairie, and Grand Cote, were divided, about one-third of the membership of each going into the U. P. Church. In Bethel, no new organization was attempted, but quite a number of families withdrew and connected with the United Presbyterian church in Sparta.

Previous to this action however, Rev. Dr. Wylie had at his own request, been released from the pastoral care of Bethel congregation. His release took effect on the 20th of February, 1870, when he had entered upon the 81st year of his age. That day being the Sabbath, he explained Psalm 90: 13—17, and preached in the forenoon from Rom. 8. 28, and in the afternoon from 2 Cor. 13: 11.

He still remained in the congregation, preaching as opportunity offered, in the different congr gations, now destitute by the death or withdrawal of their pastors, — until called to his reward, March 20th, 1872.

He fell asleep peacefully, in the 83d year of his age, having nearly completed the 54th year of his labors as a missionary in that field, and the 57th of his ministry.

His last public service was at the opening of the new church in Grand Cote congregation, Jan. 14th, 1872. He explained Psalm 84, and preached the sermon from Hebrews 12: 28.

On the 28th of December, 1871, he presided in the moderation of a call for a pastor in Bethel. The call resulted in the choice of the writer, who accepted the call and was ordained and installed on the 5th of June, 1872, in the church of Eden.

Though the congregation had been greatly reduced through repeated divisions, it has since enjoyed a good degree of prosperity. In the spring of 1876, it was decided to remove from Eden, and locate in Sparta. Accordingly, the Methodist church, which was then offered for sale, was bought and completed, and the services of the congregation have been held in Sparta, since the first of July, 1876.

The records, as far as preserved, show that over a thousand members were received into full communion, during Mr. Wylie's ministry. The present membership is about 170. (Jan. 1883.) The financial affairs of the congregation are managed by a board of trustees, and a treasurer. The present members of the board are: S. F. Hyndman, J. F Blair, Wm. H. Wilson, J. C. Wilson, J. M. Lackey, S. Baird, and Wm. C. Fullerton. J. C. Boyle is treasurer of the congregation.

The session consists of the pastor, W. J. Smiley, and the following ruling elders: John McCaughan, S. T. Nisbet, John Temple, J. G. Wylie, W. W. Hemphill, Wm. McIntyre, Hugh Nisbet, Neal McIntyre, and D. R. Stormont. The following persons have entered the ministry, from this congregation, viz: Gordon T. Ewing, Hugh A. McKelvey, Wm. T. Wylie, Robert Brown, R. C. Wyatt, and John B. Galloway.

Forty-two persons in all have been ruling Elders in Bethel, of whom but seventeen are now living.

Messrs: Edgar J. Munford, A. McMillan, and J. Wilson were elders in South Carolina; Messrs. Little, Taylor, and James and Thos. Blair in Tennessee; Mr. Fulton in Ohio; Dr. Marshall in Hill Prairie; and Mr. M. McMillan in Concord, though the last two were members of Bethel before Hill Prairie and Concord were organized:

BETHEL SYNOD.

This congregation is a part of the original Bethel, and its separate history dates from the division of 1833.

At that time its members chose the new church building, still unfinished, and agreed to pay those in connection with General Synod the amount subscribed by them for building the church. Rev. Daniel Steele of Ohio was the first minister who visited them. In the summer of 1834 he preached here and in Old Bethel and Elkhorn. During his stay he organized a congregation in Elkhorn, in connection with Synod, which obtained Rev. S. McKinney as pastor in 1835. This congregation does not claim connection with Bethel, although Mr. Wylie had labored there and gathered in some members before the division.

Bethel was dependent on supplies for several years. The first effort to obtain a pastor resulted in the choice of Rev. J. B Johnston on the 17th of September, 1839. The call was declined. On the 27th of January, 1840, a call was made in favor of Mr. Hugh Stevenson. Having accepted the call, he was ordained by the Presbytery of the Lakes, July 13, 1840, and soon after began his labors in Bethel, and was installed pastor on the 15th Oct., 1840. He died, greatly lamented, on the 15th of May, 1846, in the 38th year of his age During his pastorate 76 persons were received into full communion.

The next pastor was the Rev. James Milligan. He began his labors in March 1848. The congregation still increased in numbers, and during his pastorate the Church Hill congregation in Grand Cote Prairie was organized. He was released from his charge, at his own request, on the 9th of August, 1854.

On the 13th of August, 1855, Mr. D. J. Shaw was called to become pastor, but declined the call.

Mr. D. S. Faris was called on the 26th of March, 1857. He accepted the call and was ordained and installed Oct. 7, 1857. From that time until the present Mr. Faris has continued to discharge faithfully the duties of his office, and his pastorate is now the longest in the whole community.

In 1874 the old church and lot were sold and a new brick church 40x60 feet was built in Sparta, at a cost of over about three and a half miles above the mouth of Plum creek, and a half mile east of the west bank of the Kaskaskia, near a spring of lasting water there stood a small log building in which James St. Clair taught the children in the settlement. This was the first school-house. In these early days it was the custom enforced by necessity for the settlers to detail and employ one of their own members to act as teachers. From this rude beginning almost as by magic, has developed the present advanced condition of the common schools Husbandry in early days was confined to the timber districts, partly from other circumstances and necessarily on account of the immense numbers of green-headed flies that infested the prairies, and rendered the horses in daylight utterly unmanageable. The primitive prairie farmer was obliged to do his team work at night. Not the least among the burdens that fell to the lot of the pioneer, were those in respect of milling and clothing. The responsibility and care of the latter fell principally upon the women, who plied the spindle and the shuttle with diligence. About 1816, on a settler's claim in section 28 or 29, on the banks of the river, Robert McDaniels built the first mill, and supplied a much felt need.

The earl est important American settlements in what is now Baldwin precinct were made by Absalom Cox, of Cox's ferry notoriety, David Anderson and William McBride, who came with other families from South Carolina in 1804. There were three of the Anderson brothers who played an important part in the development of the country around Plum creek. They were besides David just mentioned, James and John The two former came together in company with Cox, McBride and Robert McDonald. Cox located on a four hundred acre settler's claim in the N. W. ¼ of section 28. This claim, No 1044, and the one adjoining it on the south, No 1992, were located respectively in favor of two bachelors named Hix and Smith. Each had a cabin on his claim, but they lived principally together and took their meals at the upper cabin. One day one of them went to the river to get water. His long absence excited some alarm, and his companion, who was deaf, went in search and found his comrade lying in the canoe dead and scalped. This so alarmed him that he never returned from the burial of the body for which he started, in the canoe, to Kaskaskia. The lower claim was afterwards confirmed to General Edgar, by whose permission Cox located on the one lying above. He brought with him to the county his wife, whose maiden name was Jane McBride, sister of Thomas, William and John, and three children. Five other children were born in the county, Mr. Cox was a man of courage and enterprise. The former made him a leader in the ranger service. The latter shortly after his arrival showed itself in the establishment of a ferry. This was at first operated by means of a canoe. About 1816 or '17 increased immigration demanded better facilities for crossing the river, and Mr. Cox built a ferry boat sufficient to carry two wagons at a trip. But exposure to the sun during low water soon ruined it. After its abandonment, about 1822, the ferry was operated again in the old way. As early as 1815 or '16, Thomas Wideman, who married Cox's sister in Tennessee, operated a ferry about a mile up the river, and had, in a rude form, the first ferry boat. It consisted of a deck formed of puncheons, resting on two canoes placed side by side. This ferry was largely patronized by the settlers prior to the building of Cox's boat. Wideman brought his wife and daughter to the country with him and settled on section 21. He excited the suspicions of the company of regulators, a sort of censorial vigilance and police committee, whose business it was to deal summary justice to offenders and suspicious characters; and to escape punishment he left the country about 1819. One of the most active in the prosecution of Wideman was his brother-in-law, Cox, evincing a disapproval of lawlessness and disorder, even though found near his own door.

David Anderson brought with him one child, Jane, who died unmarried. His wife was Nancy, daughter of Adam Hill, who settled south of Plum creek. His children, besides Jane, were Mary, Elizabeth, and Julia. He located on section 5, T. 5, R. 7, where he lived and died. The McBride family was a large one, and a valuable accession to the new settlement. It consisted of William and his wife, whose maiden name was Jane Law, and their children, Thomas, John, William, Jr., Nancy, Margaret, Jane, and Elizabeth, all married before their arrival in the county. Thomas had a wife and three children, Elizabeth, John, and William. He settled about three miles south of Baldwin, on the E. ½ of the N. E ¼ of section 26. Here he made improvements, reared a large family and lived all his life. He began blacksmithing soon after he located, and was the first to ply that trade. He was the only man in the entire settlement who could make cow-bells, an article then in great demand. He understood the art of brazing, by which he rendered the bells sound. John married Sarah Little, in Kentucky, where the McBrides had stopped a number of years before coming to Illinois. Jane McBride, whom John Anderson brought with him, in 1806, as his adopted daughter, was the result of this union. About 1815, Mr. McBride settled on the E. ½ of the N. W. ¼ of section 23. William, Jr., who was also married in Kentucky, settled in section 24, southeast of Baldwin, where he remained a few years and then moved to what is now Ruma precinct, and there died. He was an intelligent man, a teacher, and county superintendent of schools about forty years ago. He also represented his district in the State Legislature.

In 1806, George Wilson, John Anderson, and John Douglas located here. Mr. Wilson was in the ranger service for three years; other early settlers were John G. Nelson and Samuel Douglas. Mr Nelson was a justice of the peace for many years, and was the first in what is now this precinct.

Jane McBride became the wife of John, son of Archibald Thompson, and theirs was probably the earliest marriage in the precinct. Thompson subsequently settled in Evansville precinct. He became a member of the legislature, and died at his boarding place during one of the sessions The Thompson family came to the county in 1804. Robert McDaniel built the first mill. He settled here in 1812. Thomas and David Fulton, South Carolinians, came in 1814. George Heacock was an eastern man, and settled north of

EVANSVILLE.

RANDOLPH COUNTY.

EVANSVILLE precinct, is a fine body of land; bounded on the north by Baldwin, on the east by Central, on the south by Florence, and on the west by the Kaskaskia river. It is drained in the northern portion, by Plum creek. In the southeastern by Butter creek, which empties into Nine Mile creek, running along its southern boundary. The land in the eastern portion is quite level, that along the western boundary somewhat broken. The wooded districts comprise a portion, about one-third in size, as compared to the cleared land. The farms are in a fine state of cultivation, and the primitive cabin of the first settlers has given place to the modern structure, and two story frame and brick dwellings, are numerous. The farmers are thrifty. The German element predominates in the western and middle portions, while in the vicinity of Preston, there still remain some of the descendants of the original Scotch-Irish who were the first to encounter the perils of early emigration.

About the year 1780, a settlement was made about the mouth of Nine Mile creek, by some of Col. Clarks old soldiers, and some friends, whom they had persuaded to come along with them to the country. Of these, Daniel Hicks, Henry and Elijah Smith, Hilderbrand, Hayden, Lunceford and others were prominent. They nearly all lived and died in the settlement. Lunceford went to St. Clair county, Ill., where he left quite a large number of descendants. These were undoubtedly the first settlements made in this precinct, and but little can be learned of them at this date. A locality famous in early days, was called the Irish settlement, which was located near the mouth of Plum Creek, and derives its name from the fact that the Irish settlers were called South Carolina Irish. The place was probably first settled by a man, eminent, even at that early day, for great energy and activity, James Patterson, from the Abbeville district, South Carolina. He afterwards settled upon the site of Preston village, in 1804. This old pioneer held the offices of Justice of the Peace and County Commissioner, and also made himself conspicuous as a ranger in the war of 1812. He had four sons, John, Samuel, Reuben and James Harvey. John, after living for several years in the same settlement, with his father, moved to Hill Prairie, where in 1837, he died. Samuel settled in Horse Prairie; Reuben, in Heacock Prairie; James H. lived on the farm, first settled by his father. John Fulton, another addition to this settlement, came in 1812. He proved to be of considerable aid, in promoting the best interests of the little community. His sons, Thomas, David and Cyrus, all located in the neighborhood. On the 25th of December, 1804, a great addition was made to this settlement by the arrival of the families of John McClinton, David and James Anderson and Adam Hill, all of whom numbering thirty-one sons came from the Abbeville District, South Carolina. David Anderson was called on frequently to fill places of trust and honor, and was a very popular colonel of the militia. He left no sons, all dying while young. His oldest daughter married Robert G. Shannon. His brother James only lived a few years after coming to Illinois. Adam Hill, one of the four sons, settled near Evansville, living there until his death. His sons were John, William, Adam, Robert, and Samuel. There was a further increase of the Irish settlement in the latter part of the year 1804, by the arrival of Absalom Cox, James and Archibald Thompson, William McBride and Robert McDonald, and others. Archibald Thompson was noted for his efficiency and excellence of character. After living a few years in the settlement he moved in 1812 to a place two miles south of Evansville, where he died in 1833. His sons were Robert, William, Morris, Archibald, John and James.

William McBride, though advanced in years when he came to the Irish settlement, still endeared himself to every one by the mode of his life, and the manner in which he endured the hardships of the country. He died in 1818. His sons Thomas, John and William, settled in the neighborhood. Thomas left two sons, William and John. William McBride was captain of a militia company in 1813, and was also once a county commissioner. Alexander Clark, who came to the settlement in 1805, located three miles south of where Evansville now stands. Samuel Crozier and George Wilson came to the settlement in 1806. Samuel Crozier settled two miles south of Evansville. Being a man of talents and fine character he soon attained a leading position and received high recognition. Some of his descendents are still living in the county.

In the year 1807 John Campbell settled near the mouth of Nine Mile creek, and subsequently died in 1827, four miles east of Evansville. Robert Forster was another old settler who built a mill, run by horse power, and a steam distillery near the mouth of Plum creek. These improvements were the attractions that caused the settlement to grow rapidly. John Anderson came in 1808 and first settled near his brother, Colonel Anderson, where he lived until his death. In 1808 William Barnett came from Kentucky. He died in 1818.

A block-house was erected in the Irish settlement in 1812, rendered necessary by Indian hostilities. Andrew Borders

GRAND COTE.

PERRY COUNTY.

SITUATED in the extreme northwestern portion of the county, lies Grand Cote Precinct. It is bounded on the north by Washington county, on the east by Beaucoup, on the south by Cutler, and on the west by Randolph county. Much of the surface, which is level, was formerly covered with timber. The only prairie is that bearing the same name as the precinct. Much of the timber remains undisturbed. The Cairo Short Line Railroad enters at section 36, passing through the precinct in a northwesterly direction, and passes out at section 7. This precinct has no water-courses. It comprises all of congressional town four south, range four, and two tiers of sections in the northern part of town five, range four. The soil is fertile and productive. Agriculture is the principal occupation of its inhabitants. The population, according to the census of 1880, was nine hundred and forty-one.

Grand Cote—from the French—meaning Beautiful Prairie, was first settled by Thomas Swanwick, who came from Chester, England, and located on the northwest quarter, and the east half of the southwest quarter of Sec. 11, T. 4, R. 4, which he had entered February 13, 1818. The lands first settled by Thomas Swanwick are now occupied by J. J. Swanwick, his son, who is past the meridian of life, a most estimable and respected citizen. With Thomas Swanwick came James McMurdo to the western county. The second settler in Grand Cote was Wm. P. Elliott, from the State of Georgia. He located on section 20, T. 4, R. 4, about the year 1820. He brought his family in the spring of 1821. Next came Jonathan Petit in the spring of 1825, from Randolph county, from what was then known as the "Irish Settlement," and located on section 30, T. 4, R. 4. In the ensuing fall Petit sold out his claim to one Absalom Wilson, a native of Washington county, Virginia, who did not move upon the lands until 1840. George Cherry, of the Chester District, South Carolina, arrived the same year, 1825, and located on section 5. He resided there until his death in March, 1867. In the year 1828, James Kirkpatrick, a native of South Carolina, settled on section 9, on lands now occupied by B. Semple. So far as we are able to learn, these men who came to Grand Cote were its original pioneers. From some cause, between the years 1829-1833, no additions were made to this little band of bold and venturesome pioneers, who formed the nucleus, in their wild and almost unbroken lands, of what is now one of the most prosperous and refined farming communities in the little county. John White is a native of South Carolina. He came to the county in 1832, and now resides in section 6. Robert H. Allen, who lives in section 25, was born in Perry county in 1834. W. M. Adair, a merchant of Swanwick, was born in Illinois, and came to the county in 1837. Hugh Cooper of Section 9, T. 5, R. 4, was born in South Carolina, and located in Perry county in 1831. About the year 1835, a new and full tide of immigration began to pour into this settlement. Among the first was Alexander Craig, a native of Ireland, who, on his way to his western home, had stopped in South Carolina and Kentucky. He located, in 1835, on section 25, the present Craig's station on Cairo Short Line Railroad, being on the lands originally settled by him. In 1834, William Rainey came out from St. Clair county and settled on section 24. In 1836, he sold his farm to Solomon Maxwell, from Bedford county, Tennessee, the latter remaining upon it until his death. Benjamin Ragland was the eighth of the settlers in 1835. He came from Kentucky and settled on section 24. In 1836, he sold his farm to John McMillen, and again settled on section 14 of the same township. Mr. McMillen in turn sold his farm in December, 1838, to Joel Rushing, for one hundred and twenty dollars. In the year 1836, Henry H. Elliott, son of W. P. Elliott, and father of the Rev. J. C. Elliott, settled on section 13, on the farm now occupied by H. H. Rice. About the same year John Hughey settled on section 26, and Newton Franklin on section 14.

From this time the settlers flowed into the precinct very rapidly, among whom we might mention the Craigs, Justices and others, and the country was filled up almost as by magic.

Between the years 1822 and 1840 the dry goods and groceries were most generally purchased from R. G. Shuman, of the then little town of Columbus, Randolph county, better known now as Sparta, Mr. Shuman carrying on to considerable extent the grain trade, purchasing corn at Chester and shipping to New Orleans. In the year 1845 the first dry goods store was opened in this precinct by J. C. Steele, near where Swanwick station is now located. He also kept the first post-office in the precinct. In 1846 upon the breaking out of the Mexican war, he turned the store and post-office over to one, Samuel Hughey, and went into the army. John M. Woodside afterward kept the store and post-office at the same place. In 1840 Grand Cote had a shoemaker named Isaac Fowler.

In the years 1822-'23 William P. Elliott built the first

Catharine was the eldest daughter. She was born July 24th, 1847, and died in her sixteenth year. Jane was the wife of William Gallegly. She died April 24th, 1873, in her fortieth year. She left five children. Frances Elizabeth was the wife of Joseph Lively. She died without issue April 10th, 1870, in her thirty-first year. Mary W., wife of John W. Lively, died March 14th, 1876, in her thirty-fifth year, leaving four children. Rachael C. died February 12th, 1870, in her twenty-fifth year. James Couch Elliott, the subject of this sketch, is the eldest of the family and the only survivor. He was born in Randolph county, Illinois, near Sparta, January 6th, 1830. He was reared on the farm, and acquired his primary education in the subscription schools of his neighborhood. From fifteen to twenty-one he hired out, and his wages went to the support of the family only retaining enough to clothe himself. He attended one term at the Academy in Sparta, and then taught school for several terms. At the age of twenty he entered the State University at Bloomington, Indiana, and graduated from that institution. He had resolved to enter the ministry of the United Presbyterian Church, and with that idea in view he spent three terms of seven months each in the Theological Seminary at Monmouth, Illinois. He was licensed to preach May 7th, 1862, and regularly ordained a minister of the church Oct. 7th, 1863. In the latter year he went to Wyoming in Iowa county, Wisconsin, and was the "Supply" for six months, after which he became the pastor of the Wyoming and Blue Mound United Presbyterian Congregations, and remained in charge until in February, 1868. In July of the same year he was called to the pastorate of the Bethel Congregation in Grand Cote, Perry county, and has remained in charge up to the present, a period of nearly fifteen years. On the 14th of April, 1864, he was united in marriage to Miss Lydia A. Moreland of Randolph county, Illinois. She was the daughter of James and Margaret Moreland. She died December 7th, 1873, leaving one son, named William Zwingli Elliott, now in attendance at the Academy in Coulterville, Illinois.

On the 10th of October 1876, he married Miss Maggie, daughter of Rev. James M. and Nancy (McClanahan) Henderson, of Oakdale, Washington county, Illinois. Mrs. Elliott was born near Madison City, Indiana. Politically, Mr. Elliott votes the Republican ticket, but takes no farther interest than exercising the right and duty of every American citizen by casting his ballot. He is very much in favor of prohibition, and regards the licensing of saloons, an offense against religion, good morals and the best interest of society.

CAPTAIN WILIAM M. ADAIR

Was born in Randolph county, January 6, 1837. The family is of Scotch-Irish ancestry. His grandfather came to America from the north of Ireland, and settled in South Carolina, and there his son William was born in 1781. The latter grew to manhood, and was a soldier in the war of 1812, under Gen. Jackson. Soon after that war he came north to Illinois, and settled in Perry county, on "Six Mile Prairie;" subsequently removed to Randolph county to a place eight miles east of Kaskaskia, on the Shawneetown road. He died in Perry county while back here looking after the improvement of land that he had entered, the date of which was in 1856. He was also a soldier in the war of 1831–32, with Black Hawk, and was major of the regiment. He was appointed Receiver of the Land office, a few years before his death, and was in that position when he died. Soon after he first came to Perry county, he married the daughter of James Brown. She died, leaving two children, one of whom is yet living. He afterwards married Mrs. Rebecca Lacey, widow of John Lacey. Her maiden name was Taggart. She was of Irish parentage, and born in South Carolina. She died in 1877, aged eighty-two years. By this marriage there were two children, twins, son and daughter. The daughter is the wife of Frank Moore, a resident of Randolph county. William Miles Adair, the son, was reared upon the farm; received a fair English education, and remained at home until the breaking out of the late war, when he enlisted for three years in company "C," of the 30th regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry. On the organization of the company he was elected Orderly Sergeant. The regiment was brigaded at Cairo, and formed a part of the 3d Brigade, 3d Division of the 17th Army Corps, Gen. McPherson commanding. The regiment received its first baptism of fire at the battle of Belmont, and subsequently participated in the capture of Forts Donaldson and Henry, siege of Corinth; marched to Jackson; was in the battle of Brittain's Lane, in Tennessee, then to Memphis and to Vicksburg; took part in the siege and capture, and in the meantime was in the battle of Champion Hills. While at Vicksburg the 30th regiment veteranized, then came home on a furlough; returned and was in the Atlanta campaign, and in the fight before Atlanta, on the 22d of July, 1864, Mr. Adair was taken prisoner, and was held until the 1st of September, of the same year, when under an arrangement between the Generals of the Union and Rebel armies, he and others that were captured were exchanged. He joined Sherman's forces, and then went with him in his memorable march to the sea, up through the Carolinas and to Washington, where he participated in the Grand Review. The company was mustered out at Somerville, and finally discharged at Springfield, July 17, 1865, having been in the service a few days lacking four years. He enlisted August 20, 1861. He entered as a private; was elected Orderly Sergeant, commissioned 2d Lieutenant, January 28, 1862; 1st Lieutenant, May 16, 1863, and commissioned Captain of the Company, August 20, 1864. Captain Adair was in every battle and skirmish in which his company and regiment participated, except those occurring when he was a prisoner, which was only a few weeks. After the war he returned to Randolph county, and engaged in farming. In 1872 he came to Perry county, and he continued in same avocation up to 1880, when he came to the village of Swanwick, and engaged in mercantile business, in which he still continues. He married Miss Parthena, daughter of John and Florinda (Uhles) Harmon. She was born in Randolph county, September 11, 1844, and died March 10, 1882, leaving no children. Capt. Adair is a member of the United Presbyterian church. Politically he has always since casting his first vote, been a Democrat. This in brief is an outline history of Capt. William M. Adair. He was a gallant and brave soldier, and old settler, and an honest and upright citizen.

SOUTH WESTERN.

PERRY COUNTY.

THIS precinct is situated in the southwestern corner of the county. It is bounded on the north by Cutler, on the east by Pinckneyville, on the south by Jackson county, and on the west by Randolph county. Pipestone creek furnishes ample drainage and water supply. The surface is undulating and the soil fertile. The St. Louis and Cairo Railroad crosses the southwest corner of this precinct. By the last census, in 1880, the precinct had a population of one thousand and eighty-nine.

Among the first settlers, as early as 1817, were Simon Williard, who located on section two, town six south, range four, where he entered, January 19th, 1819, 504.60 acres of land. James Craine settled on the northeast quarter of section thirteen, of the same town and range; and became the owner of the tract of one hundred and sixty acres by entering the same at the land office in Kaskaskia, May 14th, 1818. Benjamin Brown was also one of the settlers of this precinct in 1817. We find him making his home on the west half of the southeast quarter of section eleven, town six south, range four west, which he entered, January 14th, 1819. Richard Green, Robert Johnson, Robert Crow, with their families, were also living in this locality at the same time, and together with William H. Threlkel, Robert Gillihan, Jacob Short and John Stuart were leading characters in the early history of the county. They were natives of New York, Kentucky and Tennessee. Stephen Kelly was also an early pioneer. Alexander A. Watkins, a farmer and stock raiser, who resides in section 19, township 6, range 3, is a native of Tennessee, and came to the county in 1839.

The first dry goods, groceries etc., shoes, plows, and wagons were bought of Lyborger and Reed, at Kaskaskia, previous to 1827. Much of the trading was done with Col. Jones, of Georgetown, Randolph county, between 1827 and 1840. The first dry goods and grocery store in this precinct was kept in 1827 by a man named Jacob Short. The first blacksmith shop was kept by John McClure, in 1839. There was a wagon shop in 1850, kept by Gadbuy. John McClure had the first plow shop in the precinct. The first band grist mill was built here by a man named Willard, in 1819. It did pretty good work for a mill of its kind, for a period of nine or ten years. In 1834 a good many of the settlers had their milling done at Riley's Mill, in Kaskaskia. They also had milling done at Glide's mill in Georgetown about 1834. Dickey P. Smith was the first preacher in the county. In 1830 the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized in this precinct, consisting of ten members. The name of the minister who organized the church was French. They held their meetings in a small school-house, where Denmark now stands. In 1835 the Methodist Episcopal denomination built their first church near Denmark. The first Sabbath-school was held in this precinct in 1859, with twenty-eight scholars; it was the work of the Associate Reformed Presbyterians. Robert Crow and Green Derrington were teachers. The first school taught in this precinct was in 1825, by a man named Robert Clark, near the present residence of Francis Smith. The first school-house was built in 1825, out of round logs. Weight poles were used to hold the roof on. The books used were the American Preceptor, English Reader, and Columbian Orator. The school lasted from three to six months. Tuition rated from $2.00 to $2.50 per quarter. The writing paper was coarse, unruled, and goose-quill pens and maple bark ink were used.

Land entries of South Western precinct: April 25th, 1815, William McIntosh entered three hundred and twenty acres in the N. ½ of section 3. February 5th, 1818, Jonathan Bowerman entered the E. ½ of the N. E. ¼ of section 6, seventy-nine and twenty-hundredths acres. August 12th, 1818, the same entered the E. ½ of N. W. ¼ of section 6, eighty-seven and sixty-four hundredths acres.

DENMARK.

The little hamlet of Denmark, is situated in the western part of South Western precinct, the nearest railroad station being Cutler, some five miles distant. The town was laid out by John D. Rees, on the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twenty-four, in town six south, range four west, and was surveyed and platted by Robert Steele, county surveyor, on the first day of April, 1860. It formerly bore the euphonious name of "Jack Town."

The first house was built by John D. Rees, whose family, and those of several Canadian-French, were the first to settle in that section. The house was a small frame. John D. Rees opened the first store, and the post-office was kept by Brown. There are two handsome church buildings in the town, belonging respectively, to the Presbyterian and Baptist denominations. Also a neat school-house.

Dear Barbara,

Sorry to take so long! Here are the obits you requested. They were in the Murphysboro American, with the dates penciled in. The Hist. Soc. has collected them in indexed albums; that's why there are other obits on the same page. By the way, Tower Grove is a lovely cemetery.

The only expense was $1 for the copies (they charge more for copies of obits in order to try to recoup some of their expenses for this huge obit indexing project). It's not enough to be concerned with, but if you want to send me 2 or 3 stamps or something, that would be fine.

Glad I could help.

After moving to Coulterville on the farm, Bill had several different jobs. He worked for the railroad, as an electrical worker building highlines, and then became an ironworker belonging to Local #392 for 40 years, but his heart was in farming and horses and mules.

In 1950, Bill started raising, training and showing registered quarter horses. Bill and his family had great success at quarter horse shows throughout the 50s, 60s and 70s. In the late 1970s, he added a team of mules to his hobby. The mules, Sam and Tom were famous throughout the area, giving free wagon rides and winning many trophies and ribbons at state and local fairs. Tom was the grand champion mule at the Du Quion State Fair in 1978 and 1980. Future U.S. Senator Paul Simon joined Bill in the wagon at many of the parades during this time and it was very beneficial to Simon's early political career.

Bill retired from farming and he and Lillian moved to the Village of Coulterville in 1978. He has served three four-year terms as a village board member. Always active in politics, Bill served as precinct committeeman for 16 years and previously in Perry County for 16 years.

Bill and Lillian attend a local church, but their home church is Concord Baptist Church at Rice, IL. He is a life member of the Sparta Masonic Lodge #162, Scottish Rites Consistory and Shriner Ainad Temple.

He has served 10 years as a board member of the Western Egyptian Economic Council, Steelville. He has been the vice-president of the Randolph County Democrat Organization for eight years.

In 1979, Bill was "Horseman of the Year", Illinois Western Horse Show Association. He was inducted into the Horseman Hall of Fame, World Championship Flag Race, Mt. Vernon, IL in 1980. In 1986, he was Outstanding Citizen of Coulterville. Submitted by Charles Sheeler

This generation of Fulton ranged a little further from their birthplace and were a little more mobile than the preceding generation, but they still found their life time mates within a relatively short distance of home. All resided on farms and derived their livelihood there from and raised their families in Randolph County or just across the county line in St. Clair County.

Jane Ann, (1863-1942) married Samuel A. Hemphill (Nov. 21, 1894) and had five daughters and one son; Margaret E., (1833-1920); Wm. Henry Jr., (1869-1943) married Sarah Etta Hamilton Nov. 5, 1891 and had three sons; David John (1874-1939) married Mary M. McMillian Oct. 17, 1900, had three daughters, one son; James A. ELIZABETH BROWN FULTON - Elizabeth Brown Fulton lived another 22 years after the death of her husband William Henry Fulton, Sr.

Mrs. Fulton was a devoted mother and loving grandmother. She saw one of her daughters die at the age of 27. Mamie had married Wm. Henry Snyder and lived only a short distance from her parents. Her untimely death was due to complications of a pregnancy.

Elizabeth saw four of her other children raise families, the exception being Margaret. Margaret was born with a crippled right hand; she had a specially made knife and fork with which to eat. She lived at home the majority of her life. She and John Fullerton married late in life. John was many years older and had previously been married to Mary Brown. Margaret was his niece by marriage. It was the custom of the day to chivariee newlywed couples. The relatives and neighbors thought this couple should be no exception, even if they were elderly. As part of the chivariee tradition, the revelers at the chivariee tried to to "force" their way into the home of the newly weds in order to disrupt their routine and observe some favor such as fruit, candy, cookies, etc. Margaret and her elderly husband decided no one would make their way into their home. Someone forced a door open and pushed Wm. Vernon Fulton, one of Margaret's favorite nephews into the house. Margaret took after him with her special knife and fork and Vernon thought that he was going to be sliced to bits before he escaped, unharmed, through a window.

The couple lived in a farm house in Hill Prairie for the short time of their marriage, prior to John's death in 1920. Margaret later lived with her mother and died in Marissa in 1936.

Elizabeth Brown Fulton had 14 grandchildren and had 14 great-grandchildren at the time of her death. She dearly loved her offspring, particularly her great-grandchildren. Mrs. Fulton was a fairly large lady and stout in her later years. Stories were told of how she liked to take the babies, sit rather heavily in her favorite rocking chair and sing "My Pony Boy" to them. Family members were always fearful that she would go right through the bottom of the chair as she sat down with the baby.

She lived at the family farm for several years after her husband's death. Eventually one of her sisters and a daughter came to live with her.

Their home was heated by wood in fireplaces. A grandson, Alfred Fulton, who lived nearby, remembered that it was his task to carry in wood to fill the wood boxes next to the fireplaces. During cold weather, he did this both before school and after school. He said that in the morning he would fill the boxes, go back in the evening to find the boxes nearly empty and the three elderly ladies huddled in shaws in front of the fireplace. Occassionally his grandmother would suggest that they should give the lad a piece of money. Alfred said that usually it was the great aunt that gave him the piece of money and it was usually a very small piece.

Elizabeth Brown Fulton lived her last years with her daughter and son-in-law, Jane Ann and Sam Hemphill, near Tilden. She died in their home June 13, 1930, and was buried beside her husband in the Hill Prairie Cemetery. Submitted by Bruce A. Fulton

WILLIAM HENRY FULTON, JR. AND SARAH ETTA HAMILTON FULTON - William Henry Fulton, Jr. was the son of William Henry Fulton, Sr. and grandson of William and Jane Wylie Fulton. He was born Nov. 23, 1867. Sarah Etta Hamilton was the daughter of John Boyd Hamilton and his wife Sarah Martha Burns Hamilton. She was the granddaughter of John and Isabelle Boyd Hamilton. Sarah Etta was born Aug. 12, 1869. She was known throughout her life as Etta. They were married Nov. 5, 1891. Both were third generation Randolph County residents. They spent their entire lives in this county.

Their three children were: John Thomas born July 16, 1898, died Jan. 3, 1974; William Vernon born Jan. 13, 1902, died Jan. 28, 1973; Dean Hamilton born Jan. 9, 1904, died Jan. 31, 1984.

William and Etta bought a 160 acre farm in the Hill Prairie area (T 4S R 6W) section 13 of Randolph County. They were of the Presbyterian faith and belonged to the Tilden Presbyterian Church; where as the Fulton ancestors belonged to the Jordans Grove Presbyterian Church.

William, like his father, was a farmer and carpenter. He spent most of his time building houses in the area. He built a large two story, seven room, home complete with bath and a coal burning furnace on his farm about 1910. He built two other homes exactly like his own home. One was for his brother-in-law and the other was for a cousin, Charles Fulton. The Charles Fulton home burned in 1931 and the Hemphill house in 1932.

The William Fulton home was moved to St. Clair County just south of Marissa. The Fulton farm had been sold to the Peabody Coal Company for strip mining. The house is still occupied at this time.

The three boys followed their father's vocation of carpentry. Dean lived and farmed the homeplace after his marriage until 1942. He then moved his family to Tilden. Vernon and his family then moved in with his parents and cared for them until the farm was sold in 1947. They also moved to Tilden near John and Dean. All three brothers were hunters in their younger years. They each had three children, and each were school board members, in different districts, at the same time. The three brothers and their spouses are buried in the Tilden Cemetery.

John Thomas, (1900-1977) married Freda Ulrich Nov. 23, 1921; Wm. Vernon (1905-1988) married Florence Nitzsche, Feb. 10, 1926; Dean Hamilton (1913-1976) married Elizabeth Patton, Dec. 2, 1931.

All three had children, two boys and one girl.

William and Etta lived fruitful and productive lives. Etta's eyesight became very poor in her latter years. Her favorite pastime was sitting in her rocking chair beside a large window in her home. There she spent hour after hour crocheting items which she gave to her family and friends. She died at home April 2, 1943. William suffered from rheumatism and had to walk with crutches many years before his death. His fingers were also affected and became rigid; however, he could still eat peas with his knife. He died at his son John's home in Tilden, March 5, 1947. William and Etta are buried in the Hill Prairie Cemetery. Submitted by Bryan A. Fulton
